in Signing Bill Will Enact One of the Major
Tax Plans.

HOUSE TO CONSIDER
SALES TAX TODAY

Amendments Added by Senate To Key Proposal
Will Come Up Before
Lower Branch.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

Governor L. G. Hardman will sign the Boykin income tax bill Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, it was announced Wednesday, and with the attachment of his official signature the state will enter on a new taxation plan. The passage of the bill in the two houses and the signing by the governor will remove one of the major tax plans of the present session from legislative discussion.

Today it is expected that the house will consider the key gross income or sales tax bill which was passed Wednesday in the senate and which previously was passed in the house. Of the amendments added in the senate, one provides that taxpayers shall not be subjected to income taxation under both the Boykin and the key bills. The amendment is a straight-out protection against double taxation and house leaders Wednesday were sanguine in their predictions that the bill will be accepted by the house. If the house accepts this amendment, the bill will be sent to the governor and thus two major taxation plans will have been finished within two successive days.

Minor Bills Considered.

The afternoon session of the house was devoted to the consideration of several house bills of minor importance. A measure increasing the salary of the state veterinarian from $2,500 to $4,200 annually was passed. A bill authorizing the exemption from taxation of a dam to be built across the Chattahoochee river near West Point was adopted. This measure provides that the company that builds the dam shall be exempted from taxation for 10 years provided it installs certain devices which will control flood waters. This is known as the "flood prevention bill" and is supported by the people of Troup and Harris counties.

At the afternoon session the house also adopted a constitutional amendment which, if ratified, will empower Fulton county to adopt a pension fund for its employees and to allot certain tax money now collected to this fund. The amendment will be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection in the general election in November, 1930.

College Renamed.

Bills were passed providing for a change in the name of the Middle Georgia Junior College, Cochran, to Middle Georgia College, and the North Georgia Agricultural College, Dahlonega, to the Georgia State College.

The house of representatives adopted a resolution extending the privileges of the floor to the state high school democratic executive committee and one of the leaders in a movement of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association to erect a monument to the late Joel Chandler Harris at Eatonton, his old home town.

Early in the morning session the house adopted a special appropriations bill providing for the increase of Confederate veteran pensions from $200 to $300 a year and to make payments monthly instead of quarterly, as at present.

Another measure adopted at the morning session provides for the segregation of 10 per cent of state highway funds into a fund upon which the governor is authorized to issue deferred warrants. Another highway measure adopted Wednesday morning provides for distribution of funds in three districts instead of nine, as at present.

Boykin Leads Fight.

Representative Boykin personally led the fight which finally resulted in the rejection of proposed house amendments to the senate amendment and in the concurrence in the senate amendment, which was the final action that sent the measure to the governor's desk.

35 ARE NABBED
BY DRY AGENTS
AT CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Charlotte, N. C., August 21.—(AP)—At least 35 persons accused of violations of the federal prohibition laws this afternoon were arrested in two series of raids being conducted today in North Carolina by prohibition officers and United States marshals.

Prohibition agents and deputy marshals working under the personal direction of J. E. Kanipe, deputy administrator, and United States Marshal Brownlow Jackson, had brought 17 persons to the Mecklenburg county jail, while search continued for an announced number of persons. One man was released and sixteen were held.

At Fayetteville more than a score of persons were held in the county jail as a result of a series of raids in Robeson county. Nineteen had been given hearings this afternoon.

THOMASVILLE DENTIST
ARRESTED IN SWAMP
FOR HOLDUP OF BANK
ON EDGE OF SWAMP

BAREFOOT, WORN,
DOCTOR IS TAKEN
ON EDGE OF SWAMP

Thomasville, Ga., August 21.—(Special.)—Barefoot, worn and disheveled after more than 24 hours spent without food in a swamp near here, Dr. J. E. Murphy, well-known Thomasville dentist, was arrested here late today on the edge of the swamp and charged with the holdup of the Bank of Ocklocknee Tuesday when a lone man took $1,202 at the point of a pistol from a woman assistant cashier.

Capture of Dr. Murphy by Sheriff Gordon Davis followed a hunt for him instituted this morning when the dentist's wife identified the car alleged to have been used by the bandit as belonging to her husband. She said he left home Tuesday morning and she had not seen him since.

"I'll get some money or else commit suicide," were her husband's parting words, according to Mrs. Murphy. Dr. Murphy was said to be heavily in debt and to be facing a levy on his office furniture and equipment.

Wrapped in old clothes, $1,111 of the money taken was found in the woods near where Dr. Murphy was arrested.

After an all-night vigil in the dark swamp, Dr. Murphy emerged this morning at a house two miles from the city, where he went seeking food. Women and children at the house were frightened and the man fled.

Late this afternoon, John Roberts, who lives about a mile from the city, in the woods, telephoned Sheriff Davis that his dogs had been barking at a white man in the section back of his home. The sheriff went immediately to the spot where he arrested Dr. Murphy.

The man offered no resistance to arrest and he claimed he had been knocked in the head Tuesday and robbed of his automobile and money. He had no pistol or other weapon.

A masked bandit entered the Ocklocknee bank shortly after noon Tuesday and forced Miss Esther Cardin, assistant cashier, to give him $1,202 in currency and silver.

ARKANSAS LAWYER
GETS FIVE YEARS
IN BANK ROBBERY

Pine Bluff, Ark., August 21.—(AP)—A jury in circuit court here tonight, after 55 minutes' deliberation, convicted Ralph R. Reed, former city attorney, of accessory after the fact to robbery of the People's bank April 22, when three bandits robbed the institution of $20,057. He was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

The case was given to the jury at 6 o'clock, following an entire afternoon of arguments by counsel.

Reed was tried on one of five indictments returned by the grand jury. The conviction of Reed marks the fourth person to be sentenced in connection with the robbery. Two of the three bandits who held up the bank were later sentenced to 14 years each in the penitentiary, were witnesses for the state against Reed.

Two, testified Reed harbored them in his home the afternoon and night of the robbery, took $3,000 of the loot, and helped them escape to New Orleans.

Reed's counsel sought to establish that he was not at home during the hours after the robbery, and the last defense witness today, Joe (Kid) Peck, testified he was with Reed in the early hours of the afternoon.

CITY REALTY BILL IS RULED ILLEGAL

Mayson Rules Measure
Unconstitutional
Allowing Atlanta To Buy Land
On Installment Plan.

City Attorney James T. Mayson ruled Tuesday that the bill offered in the Georgia legislature to permit Atlanta to purchase property on a deferred payment plan unconstitutional, and at the same time William B. Hartfield, former alderman from the third ward, declared that the paper would permit the city's governing body to go "on a spree of land purchases."

The measure has passed the senate and has been sent to the house of representatives for its sanction.

Following the afternoon session, a petition headed by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale was being circulated by the parks committee of city council among members of council in an effort to get members of the Fulton county delegation in the assembly to champion the paper and the governor to approve it in the event of its passage by the house.

At council's regular session Monday a resolution requesting the Fulton county representatives to decline to sanction passage of any measure not approved by the mayor and general council was passed without a dissenting vote. That paper was signed Tuesday morning by Mr. Ragsdale.

Council has never before asked to approve the deferred payment measure, nor has it ever been sent to Mayor Ragsdale for his sanction.

"The proposed unconstitutional and any effort to make purchases under it could be stopped by appeal to the courts by any citizen of the city," Mr. Hartfield's statement follows:

"The bill allowing the city of Atlanta to purchase real estate on the installment plan has passed the senate and is now before the house where its fate will be controlled by the Fulton county delegation.

"Surely our Fulton county delegation will not give their approval to a bill which will enable the city government to go on a wild spree of unrestrained real estate buying either within or without the city limits.

"Already the city has bought a tremendous amount of wild land in the sticks at fancy prices and only the threat of court action by outraged taxpayers has prevented the purchase of still more.

"Now it is proposed to remove this legal safeguard which is the only protection the taxpayers have against those who would unload worthless lands on the city and those who would make irresponsible public officials who will allow it. Such a law would place the stamp of approval on such a course and just about complete the financial wreck of the city of Atlanta.

"No formal request has ever been made by the city council for the passage of such legislation and its passage would be in direct conflict with the state constitution which forbids the incurring of such debts without a vote of the people.

"Surely our county delegation will not favor such a bill and somebody ought to make known just who it is that is pushing its passage. The people of Atlanta are entitled to know just who it is that would remove the only safeguards they have against reckless extravagance on the part of their public officials."

Second Lover

Robert Chapman, Smiled
Upon by Wortova, Believed Murdered.

San Francisco, August 21.—(AP)—The mystery of how Robert Chapman, 28, leading man of the racy French farce, "Easy for Zee Zee," came to his death, presented a problem to police today as they sought to determine whether the young actor was murdered, had committed suicide or accidentally killed himself.

Chapman's body was found this morning at the bottom of a light well, six stories below the apartment of his friend, Allan Hoffman, playwright, after the two had returned from a party at the apartment of one of the women members of the play's cast.

Hoffman, police said, was able to give only meagre details of his friend's death. Two men, Hoffman told them, came to his door and asked for liquor. On being told he did not operate a bootlegging place, he said they assaulted him and knocked him unconscious. He recovered to find Chapman had either fallen or been pushed out of the window.

Police were reluctant, they said, to accept the theory that Chapman was the victim of gangland vengeance over the affections of Naana Wortova, star of the play, who has figured in a series of police escapades and whose name was linked with that of Jerry Ferri, racketeer slain about a year ago. He expressed the belief that he had either jumped out of the window in fright at the attack of Hoffman, or had accidentally fallen.

Motor Gondola Damaged
As Huge Ship Is Pulled
From Hangar by Japanese.

Tokyo, August 22.—(Thursday)—(United News.)—Bluejackets early today started a suffocated would-be juvenile stowaway in a hatch of the Graf Zeppelin. He was removed to a hospital for treatment.

Tokyo, August 22.—(Thursday)—(United News.)—The Graf Zeppelin, victor over rain and storms, ran into bad luck this morning for the first time on its flight around the world, and departure for Los Angeles was postponed a few minutes before the scheduled take-off.

As the Graf Zeppelin was being walked from its hangar, the rear engine gondola raked the ground, springing the gondola supports. The dirigible was walked on out of the field at 4:07 a. m. (2:07 p. m. eastern standard time) before the damage was realized.

The Graf Zeppelin's tail was just clearing the hangar door when the dirigible's grey nose tipped upwards, pushing the rear gondola to the ground. The ground crew held the ship steady and, when it was determined that the gondola was damaged, easily returned it to the hangar.

MAY TAKE THREE DAYS.

"The ground crew held the tail down too hard, causing it to strike," said Captain Hans C. Flemining in explaining the accident. "It knocked off the rear gondola supports and damaged them. I believe, however, we start at 4 a. m. Friday."

Other officials were not so optimistic and it might not be able to depart before Saturday night. A cable connecting the damaged gondola to the control room was sprung, making necessary considerable adjustments throughout the interior of the big gas bag.

The passengers said they hardly felt a jar when the accident occurred.

Dr. Hugo Eckener announced that repairs would require probably 24 hours, the dirigible was returned to the hangar, where the passengers disembarked. The commander said he hopes to start for America Friday morning.

May Prevent Record.

The trouble was discovered only at the last moment before the dirigible took off on the third stage of a flight of 20,000 miles around the world. It had been estimated that Dr. Eckener might arrive back at Lakehurst, N. J., his starting point, by August 29, 20,000 miles around the world. The delay makes it doubtful if he can now break the present mark of 23 days, 15 hours, 51 minutes and 11 seconds. The dirigible left Lakehurst August 7.

The Graf Zeppelin already has covered 11,080 miles in six days 13 hours and 20 minutes and is about 100 miles from Los Angeles.

The exact extent of damage to the gondola was not clear at once. The dirigible had been inspected carefully before it was taken out of the hangar and had been pronounced in perfect condition for the flight of 6,118 miles to Los Angeles.

The navy later ordered the sailors to leave the dirigible and the motor himself and completed the final inspection. The doors of the hangar were then ordered opened and the ground crew and several Japanese sailors grabbed the ropes stretching from the dirigible.

A full moon flooded the crowded air field with light and a mild, light breeze was blowing. The dirigible was walked from its hangar and all was ready for the departure at dawn when mechanics discovered the damaged engine.

All Japan Thrilled.

After a personal inspection, Dr. Eckener ordered the big ship walked back into the hangar—disappointing not only himself and his crew and passengers but thousands of spectators who had camped on the field throughout the night to witness the departure.

A mail cargo of 1,124 letters and 759 postcards was placed aboard for Los Angeles. The mail for New York was almost as heavy, and about 1,000 letters and postcards were scheduled to go to Friedrichshafen.

The great interest of Japan in the flight was made plain by the immense crowd which waited all night for a sight of the dirigible. Kamigaura was a camp where beer halls, restaurants and other amusements thrived. Trains arriving from Tokyo and other cities were packed to the limit.

It was understood that the government has informally assured Dr. Eckener of Japanese co-operation in establishing a regular European-Orient air mail and passenger route. The government is said to be willing to aid in financing such a line.

AMENDMENTS SEND
BILL BACK TO HOUSE

Senate, During Busy Session, Completes Study of More Than a Third of Appropriations Bill.

BY ROBERT H. WILSON.

In one of the busiest and most progressive sessions of the 1929 legislature, the state senate Wednesday cleared from the calendar its third important statutory tax measure by passing the house gross income tax and completed an item by item study of more than a third of the general appropriations bill.

The gross income, or sales tax, measure was passed by a 27-19 vote after an amendment recommended by the finance committee had been adopted allowing persons subject to the provisions of both the gross income and the recently passed Boykin net income tax to pay only the tax which would yield the larger revenue to the state.

Passage of this amendment along with several others affecting allocation and application of the tax will necessitate the bill's being returned to the house of representatives for concurrence in or rejection of the senate amendments. The measure was originally introduced in the house and was passed in the lower body by a large majority. It provides for a tax of 10 per cent on receipts of retail and wholesale sales, 3 mills on receipts of public utilities and of amusements and one-half mill on manufacturers.

Allotments Increased.

During its consideration of the first eight sections of the appropriations bill, the senate adopted amendments increasing the allotments already approved by the house by $75,866.44 for 1930 and by $71,500 for 1931. The measure was called up for debate after the adjournment of the afternoon session by Senator Charles D. Redwine, chairman of the appropriations committee.

The remainder of the measure will come up for detailed discussion as unfinished business during the first part of the morning meeting Thursday.

Bitter Fight Enues.

The gross income or sales tax, measure was approved after the longest and most bitter fight of the current session. Three hours were consumed in debating amendments and considering reports of the majority and minority groups of the finance committee. A vote to deliver the bill back to the house of representatives was defeated by a 25-16 vote. Vigorous opposition to it was led by Senators Redwine and Felix Williams. Supporters of the amendment argued that double taxation on incomes would result if the exemption were not provided.

Reed's Statement.

"It should be apparent to anyone that the change from foreign to domestic value would not change the measure of protection in the slightest degree," said Reed in a statement. "If we collect a 50 per cent ad valorem duty on an imported article with duty 50 cents, and the wholesale selling price of the same article in the United States is $2, the ad valorem rate under the United States value would be 25 per cent, or 50 cents."

Reed said the new system would speed up the work of the tariff commission in determining values and end the practice of fraud practiced by some importers in undervaluing goods.

He declared it had been all but impossible to ascertain costs of production in France and several other countries and in the case of goods coming from those countries the United States was "at the mercy of foreign manufacturers and importers so far as valuations were concerned."

Competitive Conditions.

The Pennsylvania senator predicted the senate would approve his plan and that the tariff commission would be able to complete its translation and report to congress in less than a year.

Another new house provision approved by the majority committee was that authorizing the tariff commission to take into consideration differences in competitive conditions, including transportation, import and other costs, instead of costs of production alone, in determining bases for tariff assessments.

The house provision authorizing the president to appoint tariff commissioners without regard to party affiliation was disapproved and the present bipartisan basis of the fact-finding body retained. It also was voted to keep the membership at six, as at present, instead of seven as proposed by the house.

FLEXIBLE CLAUSE
STAYS IN SENATE
TARIFF MEASURE

G. O. P. Members Vote To Base Ad Valorem Rates
On U. S. Instead of Foreign Values.

Washington, August 21.—(AP)—Except for a few minor administrative provisions which will be acted upon tomorrow, the tariff bill was made ready for the senate today by the finance committee Republicans, who approved many important changes in the measure as passed by the house. The bill will not be taken upon the floor, however, until September 4 under the party agreement to allow ample time for senators to study it.

Meanwhile, the democratic members of the finance committee, who had no part in the actual rewriting of the bill, will lay plans for the floor battle at a meeting called today for Friday by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking minority member.

While voting to retain in the bill the flexible clause giving the president power to readjust tariffs up or down within a limit of 50 per cent, the majority committee today approved a proposal by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, to base all ad valorem rates in the future on the United States instead of foreign value.

Change in Basing Rates.

Under the plan, all ad valorem duties in the present bill, which are based on foreign value would be converted by the tariff commission into duties based on the wholesale selling price of the imported article in the principal markets of this country. The commission would be given until January 1, 1932, to complete the conversion task, but could not begin the work until the present bill became law.

As originally framed the Reed proposal would have had the president proclaim the new rates as fast as the commission translated them, but an amendment by Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, was adopted to make the translated duties subject to approval by congress.

As United States value is much higher than foreign value, the converted rates necessarily must be lowered to arrive at the same amount of protection and amount of revenue derived under the foreign value method.

They Were Last Seen Two Days Ago.

New York, August 21.—(AP)—The Swiss fliers, Oscar Kaeser and Kurt Luescher, were missing today, their names apparently added to the list of those who dared the perilous westward passage of the North Atlantic and lost their lives in the attempt.

They were last seen two days ago, flying over the Azores in their way from Lisbon to New York. They should have arrived yesterday, but they failed to appear. Somewhere between the Ocean Islands and the fogbound coast of America their adventure came to an untimely end.

They had little in their favor beyond the courage of their youth. Their white monoplane was a sturdy ship of proven design, but it was unequipped for alighting on the water, neither of them knew much of navigation, and they had been flying only since 1927.

But they had youth and everyone knows that youth will be served. So they took off with blithe audacity on the adventure that has brought failure or death to all who ever tried it except the crew of the German plane Bremen, who barely managed to achieve a crash landing on ice-bound Greely Island.

Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, today asked merchant ships and ordered naval vessels plying the North Atlantic to keep close watch for the fliers, whose only means of staying alive if they had to bring their plane down at sea were inflated rubber suits and a rubber boat.

There still was hope in some optimistic quarters. But even there it was faint, diminishing with each additional hour.

COSTE DELAYS
ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

Lt. Bourget, France, August 21.—(United News.)—Dieudonne Coste, noted French aviator, and Maurice Bellonte postponed their projected long-distance flight after a day of intense preparations.

The two fliers had intended to depart tomorrow for New York, but a defective radio and unfavorable weather conditions prompted Coste to announce that they will not leave until Friday, at least. They will await weather developments before deciding whether to start Friday morning.

Coste, as prior to his recent attempt to fly the Atlantic ocean, declined to discuss his plans, but officials at the flying field here ridiculed rumors circulated in the United States that Coste was planning a flight around the world in an effort to overtake the Graf Zeppelin. The rumors were described by officials as "fantastic."

Cancer Cure
Is Announced
By Scientist

Hypodermic Injection Oxydizes Growth in Quick Time.

Boston, August 21.—(AP)—Discovery of a compound that dissolves and apparently cures cancer in animals in a few days was announced at the thirteenth international physiological congress at Harvard Medical school today.

It is injected hypodermically into the cancer and its effect is quite literally to cause the malignant cells to breathe themselves to death.

Scientifically the process is named oxidation, and it means that the abnormal cells get more oxygen than normally filters through to them from breathing through the lungs.

The discovery is the work of a young Russian, Boris Sokoloff, professor of experimental medicine of the Russian University of Prague, Czechoslovakia, at present working as a guest with the institute of cancer research of Columbia university.

The preparation's effect has not yet been observed on normal tissues, but it spreads throughout the cancer to the very outer tips of its growth.

Lindbergh May Blaze Air Trail for Extension of Mail Route Into South America

Flight Planned by Colonel To Get Aerial Map of Chaco Region, Dispute Subject.

Washington, August 21.—(AP)—A flight by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Buenos Aires next month was considered today as a probability.

The flight would be made in connection with the plans now being considered by the United States post office department for the most extensive air mail service in the world, linking North America and South America on both coasts and connecting with the country-wide network of air mail routes in the United States.

Aerial reconnaissance by Colonel Lindbergh over the Chaco Boreal, in dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia, to determine the possibility of aerial mapping of the region, on which subject the noted aviator recently gave advice to the commission now sitting here, also is considered a probability.

While details of the plans for the air mail are withheld by the postal authorities, it is said they call for a regular four-day service between the southern countries of South America and the United States and Canada, where transmission of mail now takes two weeks or more.

Arrange New Service.
With service to the countries on the west coast of South America down to Chile already in operation on a weekly basis, officials now are engaged in arranging for similar service on the east coast through Brazil to Argentina. The first move in that direction will be the opening of the air mail service from Miami, Fla., through Cuba and the West Indies to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, on September 20 with a mail plane piloted by Colonel Lindbergh.

Extension of that service to Cayenne, French Guiana, Para. Pernambuco, Bahia, Rio de Janeiro and Santos, Brazil; Montevideo, Uruguay, and Buenos Aires, Argentina, is being arranged by postal officials. They would not say today just when service over the entire east coast might be expected. Contracts would be let only after advertising the routes.

To Continue Down Coast.
Colonel Lindbergh, after he arrives at Paramaribo, probably will continue on down the east coast to Buenos Aires to make a survey of the proposed air route. He has always worked closely with the United States post office department officials since he left the service as a mail pilot to embark on his transatlantic venture. The flight had an opportunity a fortnight ago while the week-end guest of President Hoover at his Virginia summer fishing camp to discuss the proposed extension of the air mail to the countries of South America, in which the president is known to have a deep interest.

The other phase of the probable visit to South America by Colonel Lindbergh is his interest in the project for aerial mapping of the Chaco Boreal district in connection with the dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay. The work would be very costly and somewhat unsatisfactory by the old methods and Colonel Lindbergh advised use of airplane mapping. A flight by him over the disputed territory would enable him to give further advice to the commission.

COGNAC VALUE SET AT 4 BABOONS AND 7 MONKEYS
New York, August 21.—(AP)—A bottle of cognac is worth four baboons and three mountain monkeys to an Abyssinian chieftain.

Miss Gertrude Sanford, New York society girl, who just returned from a four-month hunting expedition for rare museum specimens, said she was presented the small menagerie by a grateful native chief to whom she had given a bottle of brandy.

Upon arrival of the party here the engagement of Miss Sanford to Sidney Legendre, a member of the expedition, was announced. Morris Legendre and Donald Carter, assistant curator of the mammal division of the American Museum of Natural History, were the other members of the party.

Specimens of nyala, a rare species of antelope, blue-winged geese, yahi, or African hunting dog, and other animals were obtained.

SITUATION UNCHANGED IN CONVERSION OF 122D

Adjutant-General Parker Declines Comment on Citizens Committee's Support of Unit.

The ultimate result of the proposal to convert the 122nd infantry into a coast artillery unit remained undetermined Wednesday following action Tuesday of a citizens' committee in voting unanimously against the conversion.

The committee named by Philip Alston, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and headed by Henderson Hallman, after hearing arguments for and against the proposal voted its disapproval of the conversion. Mr. Alston Wednesday said that the committee's action had the support of the directors of the chamber and represented the sense of that organization.

The committee's decision came as the second official gesture of disapproval within two days, city council Monday having unanimously adopted a resolution placing that body on record as opposed to the proposal.

Adjutant-General Parker, who refused to comment on the action of the citizens committee or of city council, when the announcement of the proposed change was made a storm of individual disapproval at once was evidenced and at that time General Parker stated that war department officials had advised him that no change would be made "against the will of the people of Georgia," at this time, but intimated that should a change be expedient in the future the plans would be carried through. As yet army officials have given no definite comment on the current matter.

The military thus far has refrained from voicing an opinion in the matter. The officers of the 122nd met last Monday for the purpose of voting on the conversion but deferred action until next Monday.

KNOXVILLE WAGES WAR ON INFANTILE PARALYSIS CASES

Knoxville, Tenn., August 21.—(AP)—The city of Knoxville, the state health department and the Knox County Medical Society today completed the first steps in their campaign to combat infantile paralysis in east Tennessee.

Dr. W. H. Enneis, city health officer, announced that a public clinic will be held here next Saturday, and that others will be held later in the 11 counties which have reported 53 cases and three deaths recently.

A "convalescent serum," a new development in the treatment of paralysis, is to be taken from convalescents brought to the clinic for examination. Dr. Enneis said the use of the serum was "still experimental," but that health authorities hoped it would be a valuable aid.

The state health department has assigned a specialist to the clinic. Dr. Enneis said this expert and others would go to other cities in the district as soon as practicable.

Monday night the number of cases was "rather unusual" and was considerably above normal. The county medical society accepted the state health department services last night.

FLORIDA BANK ACT TEST HEARING SET FOR SEPT. 2

Tallahassee, Fla., August 21.—(AP)—Although the state supreme court is in recess, a quorum of the bench was obtained today to issue an alternative writ of quo warranto in the case instituted yesterday designed to test the validity of the 1929 banking act.

The court made the writ, sought by J. T. Watson and Edmund Worth, Tampa attorneys, returnable September 2. At that time C. L. Knight, liquidator for the Citizens Bank & Trust Company of Tampa, must show in a return by what authority he is liquidating the bank's affairs.

The writ was requested through the attorney-general. The complainants are attacking the banking act on the ground that the state comptroller should not have appointed Knight as the liquidator.

FIRE ON LINER CAUSES TOURIST TRAFFIC JAM

Many Passengers Unable To Secure Bookings on Other Vessels.

Paris, August 21.—(AP)—Monday night's fire aboard the steamship Paris, putting her out of commission for several weeks, has caused a tourist traffic jam of almost unprecedented proportions here.

Some of those who had booked passage on the Paris succeeded in getting places aboard the Olympic and Republic sailing today, the President Harding on Friday and the Mauretania and France on Saturday. Most of these ships, however, already had been booked to virtual capacity, and all steamship offices have been jammed since yesterday morning by Americans, some of whom had engaged first-class passage on the Paris, but were satisfied to be squeezed into the tourist class on other ships.

One American businessman offered to pay for the trip homeward of anyone who would sell him a ticket on any ship arriving in New York prior to September 2.

The United States lines announced that it was useless for anyone to try to get a passage on the Leviathan's next sailing as the waiting list numbered 200.

The French line's Cuba, which was scheduled to sail for Galveston Saturday, was transferred to the New York run and the steamer Espagne, which had been scheduled to leave St. Lazare for Havana today, was ordered to Havre, whence she will proceed to the gulf ports.

MITCHELL NAMED BY BILBO TO TAKE STATE OFFICE

Jackson, Miss., August 21.—(AP)—Governor T. G. Bilbo today appointed George T. Mitchell, of Tupelo, Miss., state attorney-general, succeeding Rush H. Knox, who resigned during the hearing of charges of impeachment. The charges were dropped in view of the resignation of Knox.

The oath of office was administered to Mr. Mitchell by Justice W. H. Anderson, of the state supreme court, immediately after the commission was conferred in the executive chambers. The new attorney-general received the congratulations of members of the legislature.

Attorney-General Mitchell is a native of Pontotoc county. He is now in his fifty-fifth year. He practiced law for a number of years in his home county and served six years as district attorney. He is a graduate of the University of Mississippi.

TELETALKIE TEST GIVEN BY BAIRD AT HIS STUDIO

London, August 21.—(AP)—A demonstration of the "teletalkie," or broadcast sound film, was given today in the studios of John L. Baird, inventor of the television, the first practical television apparatus for instantaneous transmission of scenes by wire or wireless.

The "teletalkie" method permits broadcasting an ordinary talking film similarly to television and receiving it on an ordinary television. The image on the film is transmitted on one wave length and the sound on another.

Crisp County Opens Link In New York-to-Key West Georgia Seaboard Highway

Large Crowds Attend Formal Celebration of Opening—Two Motorcades of 300 Autos Go to Cordele.

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Cordele, Ga., August 21.—(AP)—Thousands of mid-Georgia citizens thronged Cordele today to celebrate the formal opening of the Crisp county link of the national highway, which traverses the Atlantic seaboard from New York to Key West.

Two motorcades aggregating approximately 300 cars and gaily decorated floats from a dozen cities in mid-Georgia joined at Cordele and paraded to Standard stadium where at noon the highway was formally dedicated. In the words of Major John S. Cohen, editor and president of The Atlanta Journal, the dedication ushered in a happy era of prosperity and expansion for Crisp and her neighboring counties as well as all Georgia.

Several hundred of the estimated 10,000 residents and visitors crowded the stadium for the event. They were welcomed by Charles E. Brown, editor of The Cordele Dispatch; Mrs. Nora Lawrence Smith, editor of The Wiregrass Farmer; and Miss Emily Woodward, editor of The Vienna News. The New York Herald for the conception of a logical highway through Georgia.

Congratulates Counties. Major Cohen responded by congratulating in turn Crisp county and her neighbors for the pavement of progress they had completed.

It will fit admirably, he said, the nearly completed Chattahoochee-Atlanta highway, which will give Georgia a through pavement to link up with Chicago and the Pacific coast as well as a good system of highways from New York to Florida.

"If The Atlanta Journal has materially helped the success of this project, we have been happy to play our part. This link represents an achievement of immense proportions."

He was followed by Managing Editor John Paschall of The Journal, who recalled that the celebration was not a mass meeting to agitate for progressive road building, but one to celebrate it. Other speakers, introduced by W. H. Dorris, of Cordele, president of the board of trade, were Congressman C. H. Crisp, of this district; John R. Phillips, of the highway board, and John Holder, past chairman of that board.

After the program the several thousand here for the celebration went to Radium Park for a fish fry and a ball game, the concluding events of a day, which was set aside in mid-Georgia for celebration of a project which links Georgia highways with those of the east and west.

ARMY COUNCIL BUSY AFTER HOOVER ORDER

Task of Reduction in Expenses Faces War Council.

Washington, August 21.—(AP)—Faced with an order from its commander-in-chief that expenditures must be pared wherever possible, the army's war council assembled today and started the task of drafting a budget for the military establishment for the next fiscal year.

Just what took place behind the closed doors of a war department office was not learned, as all budget sessions are executive. It is known, however, that since the president's announcement for a cut in the military outlay the army general staff has been studying where and how reductions could be made and the results of the work are expected to be placed before the budget framing committee. The survey is to be completed about November 1.

Those attending today's session included Secretary Good, Assistant Secretaries Hurley and Davidson and General Chas. P. Summerall, chief of staff. Davidson hurried here for the meeting from a vacation trip in Maine.

What progress has been made by those studying army costs has not been disclosed, and in view of the secrecy thrown around the formulation of a department budget, nothing may be forthcoming on this work until the regular December session.

The budget now being prepared is for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Mr. Hoover, in initiating the army survey, said he desired a "constructive and not destructive" investigation. He said he made the move at the present time as he felt that now there was less threat of war than at any time within half a century.

After the White House announcement, a number of suggestions were forthcoming as to how reductions could be made. All of these were from official sources and included one looking to the abandonment of many of the army posts scattered throughout the country and the concentration of troops at a few points.

Another suggestion contemplated a revision of army units and the discarding of those regarded as obsolete for modern warfare. Still another was the spreading out over a longer period than the five years of the present aviation building program.

The war department had nothing to say about any of these and whether they have been considered is not known.

GEORGIA'S DEATH RATE LOW, STATISTICS SHOW

Georgia's death rate compares favorably with other states in the Union, according to reports at the state board of health, made public Wednesday. This is to be expected as the climate and well distributed rainfall makes ideal conditions for long life.

The total number of deaths last year has just been compiled by the bureau of vital statistics. Total deaths are 26,085—18,642 white and 7,443 colored. Of these deaths 4,220 died without medical attention—1,185 white and 3,035 colored. A further analysis shows that of the total 36,085 deaths, 6,825 were under five years of age—3,728 white and 3,097 colored.

"Diseases of the kidneys lead in causes of death with heart disease a close follower," the report stated. "Tuberculosis comes next with a rate of only 74 per hundred thousand; cancer fourth; influenza fifth with 1,196 deaths. Then follow diphtheria, malaria, automobile accidents and typhoid fever."

Typhoid fever is being definitely reduced, which is no doubt due to public health work, co-operation of physicians, and people taking typhoid vaccine. Diphtheria has been reduced from 72 deaths the first six months of 1928 to 48 deaths the first six months of 1929. This is a triumph over a former death rate of 43 per cent of all cases.

"The fact is that the time has come when it is a reflection on a community to have either typhoid fever or diphtheria as their known remedies to eradicate them. The state board of health furnishes free typhoid vaccine, and sells at cost, five cents a dose, toxin antitoxin to prevent diphtheria."

RAINS BRING CHECK TO FOREST FIRES IN WESTERN STATES

Seattle, Wash., August 21.—(AP)—Drying down with the approach of autumn rains an end to the flames that have devoured large areas of timber in the northwestern states was foreseen today.

A few stubborn fires, notably the Methow Valley-Chelan blaze, continued to resist the efforts of fire fighters in Washington. The Chelan blaze spread to two new spots, forestry officials reported.

Among the fires believed under control were the 20,000-acre blaze at Chain Lakes, near Stevens Pass, and White Mountain fire in the Western national forest in Washington, and the Bonner's Ferry and Granite Creek fires in Idaho.

The Idaho state land department at Boise received a second appeal for aid in fighting a fire on Joseph plains, southeast of Cottonwood. The department said no crews were available.

The United States forest service reported between forty and fifty thousand acres of California pasture, brush or timber lands were within forest fire areas, either burning or burned over.

WOMAN LEAVES SUICIDE NOTE; TAKES $28, RIDE

New York, August 21.—(AP)—A $28 taxicab ride proved to be the "long, long journey" taken by Mrs. W. C. Edwards, songwriter, of Beaumont, Texas, when she disappeared last Saturday leaving a suicide note.

Police, on the strength of the note and appeals from relatives in Texas, dragged the East river in the vicinity of Brooklyn bridge in a search for her body.

Mrs. Edwards, who also was known as Lola Enloe, was located yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, where she had registered as Lola Kelly. She was traced when she telephoned to another hotel to have mail addressed to Lola Enloe forwarded to "Miss Kelly."

She professed to have no recollection of events since her disappearance other than she rode "miles and miles in a taxicab." Police found out the fare for the ride was $28.

A week ago Mrs. Edwards appealed to Vice President Curtis to help her reach music publishers who would buy her songs.

ROBBERY SUSPECT IS ORDERED HELD BY ROME POLICE

Rome, Ga., August 21.—(Special.)—County officers here today believe they have stumbled upon a robbery committed either here or in Atlanta about the 1st of August, and never reported, when they ordered Noah Fulton held in Alabama City in an effort to probe a recent payroll robbery here.

Fulton hitch-hiked to Alabama City from Rome on August 3 with a large amount of money on his person, and leaving behind him a bundle at a local depot that contained overalls, a light shirt and a pistol. He refuses to talk or tell where he procured money in $50 denominations. He denies that he took a ride from Rome, but two drivers of cars giving him lifts have positively identified him.

The paymaster of the company robbed here said today that Fulton is not one of the two who robbed him.

Deputy Sheriff C. I. Harris thinks Fulton did a "job" in Atlanta.

DR. J. R. BRADFIELD, M.R. A E PHYSICIAN, DIES AFTER ILLNESS

He was born in Mountville in Troup county and moved later to Fitzgerald and Broxton. He came to McRae 23 years ago and had been an outstanding member of the medical profession here since that time.

He was a prominent member of the Methodist church and connected with many civic affairs. He is survived by his wife and seven children, John, William, Joe, Miriam, of McRae; Mrs. W. O. Brooks, of McRae; Mrs. V. H. Smith, McRae, and Mrs. S. E. Newry, Yazoo City, Miss. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at the Methodist church.

WOMAN LOSES EYE WHEN HERON FLIES INTO HER AUTO

West Palm Beach, Fla., August 21.—(AP)—Mrs. Alton Cross, of West Palm Beach, was in a hospital here today minus one eye as the result of an unusual accident on the state highway between here and Okeechobee City yesterday.

Mrs. Cross was driving a party of friends and relatives to Okeechobee City when a large blue heron suddenly took wing from the roadside and crashed through the windshield of the car. Flying glass seriously injured the woman's eye and made its removal necessary at a hospital here last night. The car was wrecked but none of the other occupants was hurt.

GEORGIAN IS INDICTED IN 'WHIPPING' MURDER

Man Who Shot Into Party Is Held for Murder.

Greenville, Ga., August 21.—(AP)—Robert Brown, 25, of Gay, Ga., was indicted by the Meriwether county grand jury today on a charge of murder for the slaying late yesterday of Reed Connell, 55. Brown will go on trial in superior court tomorrow.

Brown, after the shooting, which occurred at his home near Gay, came to Greenville to surrender to Sheriff J. B. Jarrell. Walter Connell, 25-year-old son of the slain man, was wounded in the face.

Sheriff Jarrell said he had been informed that Brown, Connell and his son Robert and Virgil Garrett were at Jim Manley's home yesterday afternoon. The Connells accused Brown of circulating a report about them and they intended to "give him a whipping."

Brown, the sheriff said, accompanied by Garrett, his brother-in-law, left Manley's and the Connells followed him home, where Brown obtained his shotgun and fired a charge at the younger Connell, a number of bird shot striking him in the face. Then as the elder Connell advanced, the sheriff said, Brown turned the gun on him, a full charge striking him in the chest.

After the shooting Brown surrendered to the sheriff here.

GERMAN THEATER REMOVES U. S. FLAGS ON SOLON'S REQUEST

Berlin, August 21.—(AP)—Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, today personally persuaded the manager of the Kleines theater on the Unter Den Linden to remove two huge American flags which had been used to advertise a play entitled "Wet or Dry." The play was a satire of American life and the American flags were part of a theater front display during its run of three months.

The American embassy previously had failed in efforts to have them taken down. Mr. Bloom showed the manager his card as a member of the house of foreign relations committee and explained that the display of the American flag for advertising purposes would be considered insulting to the national emblem in the United States.

Cuban Joint Sales Syndicate Rumored Dissolved

New York, August 21.—(AP)—The Cuban joint foreign sales syndicate formed several months ago to dispose of about 900,000 tons of Cuban sugar to markets other than the United States has been dissolved, it was learned today.

It is understood this is preparatory to the inauguration of the government single seller agency on September 1. About 250,000 tons of sugar originally allotted to the joint syndicate will be turned back to the original owners. It is expected that the owners will turn this sugar over to the single seller.

OBSOLETE NAVY BOATS WILL BE AUCTIONED

Nine Old-Time War Vessels To Be Sold for Junk.

Washington, August 21.—(AP)—Nine obsolete navy cruisers, all of which are about a quarter of a century old, soon are to be placed on the auction block.

Secretary Adams has approved the recommendations of the naval board of inspection and survey that six of the cruisers which have been out of commission some time be offered for sale for junk or any other purpose.

Earlier in the year the navy department authorized the sale of the old cruisers Salem, Albany and New Orleans.

Of the nine to be sold, the York, laid up at the Philadelphia navy yard, is the youngest. It was commissioned in 1908 as the Chester, while Theodore Roosevelt was president. The others to be sold are the Birmingham and St. Louis, also at the Philadelphia yard; the Chattanooga and the Des Moines, at the Portsmouth (N. H.) navy yard, and the Charleston, at the Puget Sound (Washington) navy yard.

The navy also has out of commission the old cruisers Charlotte, Frederick, Huntington, Huron, Misoula and Pueblo, as well as the Olympia, which is considered a relic because she was Admiral Dewey's flagship in the Spanish-American War. The Cleveland, now at Mobile, Ala., also is obsolete and is to be decommissioned shortly.

Vick, Dover, Tenn., was in jail as a result of an automobile collision here late last night. Robertson was injured badly and his wife was cut about the face. Vick was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Questions and Answers...about the famous

OLD GOLD CONCEALED NAME CIGARETTE TEST

Ask us another if we haven't answered here every question ever asked about it

There are 48 states in the Union, but there's a touch of Missouri in each and every one. A bit of the good old "show me" spirit. So when a cigarette invites the public to test and compare the 4 leading brands and then wins 112 out of 116 tests, many open-minded Americans would like to know how these tests are conducted. Here are the questions most frequently heard...if we haven't answered every one...ask us another!

Question: Does OLD GOLD publish the score of every public test taken?

Answer: Yes...win, lose or draw!

Question: Is OLD GOLD always the same number?

Answer: No. In the actual tests there are no numbers on the cigarette masks. The smoker, himself, tears off the masks and finds out for himself which brand he has chosen as best.

Question: Is the Concealed Name Test a "guessing contest"...does the smoker attempt to guess brand names?

Answer: Decidedly not! The smoker states only which cigarette tastes best to him, and does not try to guess the name of the brand.

Question: Who conducts these tests?

Answer: Neer the makers of OLD GOLD, or their agents. The tests are conducted either by certified public accountants or officials of the organization or institution under whose auspices the tests are given.

Question: Are all competing brands equally fresh and in the same condition?

Answer: All four brands are purchased before each test at the same time, in the same store, out of regular retail stock, just as the public buys them...

and the clerk who sells them certifies the purchase.

Question: Does the official conducting the test know which cigarette is which while the smoker is making the test?

Answer: No! Emphatically no! The cigarettes are arranged in sets of four...one each of the four leading brands. Then they are masked...their names completely concealed. When the official hands out these masked cigarettes it is impossible for him, or anyone, to know one from another.

WHY not make this test yourself in your own home? We'll be happy to send you a set of the brand name masks and complete instructions. Write to P. Lorillard Co., 119 W. 40th St., N. Y. C.

Pimples Made Face Look Awful. Itched and Burned. Cuticura Healed.

"I suffered from pimples about two years. They were hard, red and large, and made my face itch and burn. They made me very nervous and I scratched my face, making it look awful. I lost several hours of sleep at night on account of the irritation. They made me feel embarrassed when in company because people looked at me."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they helped me, and after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap, and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Morrisette, 533 Poole St., Norfolk, Va.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will al-

South Is Main Beneficiary Of Protective Tariff Now, Mark Sullivan Declares

Big Business Has Become Opposed as Major Funds Are Now in Lines Having No Competition.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, August 21.—What is happening to the tariff bill is the consequence of what amounts to an evolution in American industry. The biggest part of American industry is indifferent to the bill. "Indifferent" is the precise word that describes its attitude. The portions of industry that urgently need more protection and are therefore demanding this bill have come to be relatively a minor fraction compared to American industry as a whole.

The small brothers of industry plead with the big brothers to help, but the big brothers remain indifferent. The small brothers have, at one time or another, used pleading, cajolery, threats and reproaches, but the big brothers have remained deaf.

Big Business Not Asking. In all the attacks on the pending bill, and all the accounts of hearings, no one has seriously charged that big business is asking for increases in rates. The requests for higher industrial duties have come from three classes of business. The first consists of whole units of industry, such as textiles and boots and shoes. In these cases the whole of the industry has united in showing the need for more duties. But these industries have in recent years become relatively minor factors compared to the really big industries of the country, such as automobiles.

The second class of supplicants for higher industrial duties consists of the smaller plants within industries. In several industries the larger corporations can get along without more protection, and it is only the smaller corporations that have appeared at the hearings. The third class of supplicants for more protection consists of comparatively small corporations doing business on the seaboard, where low ocean freight rates from abroad create local competition.

U. S. Funds Abroad Opposed. What has happened during recent years and what now surprises Washington is a revolution in American industry. The major aspects of it can be summed up briefly. The bulk of American industry and capital has gone into industries and investments of a sort that do not depend on protection. The industries that acutely do need protection have remained relatively stationary, while great new industries, such as automobiles, petroleum, radio and motion pictures have passed them in national importance.

The industries needing protection rank less high in order of importance. Moreover, within ten years, an immense quantity of American capital has been loaned abroad for investment, and is either indifferent to the tariff or opposed to it. A further quantity of American capital has gone abroad in the shape of factories built in Europe. In the modern fluidity of things American capital is building its factories where the raw material is, or where labor is less expensive. Members of the senate finance committee were astonished to find the number of cases in which American industries have built factories abroad and are now partially in the role of importing familiar American articles from European factories to the United States.

South Main Beneficiary. As another factor, the psychology of American industry has changed. They have come to think chiefly in terms of low costs of production. To minds set that way any idea of tariff is discomfiting. To inject into the costs of industry a fixed tariff is repugnant to the mind's intent on reduction of cost and price as the true philosophy of industry.

All these conditions have had their reflection in the minds of senators. The true picture in the senatorial part of this tariff making at least consists

FORMER CHINESE WAR LORD WILL GO ON TRIAL

To Face Japanese Court for Slaying of Chinese Prince.

Oita, Kyushu, Japan, August 21.—(AP)—Chang Tsung-chang, former Shantung war lord, will be tried in October by a Japanese court for the killing of Prince Hsien Kai, cousin of the former boy emperor of China, at Beppu August 2.

Today a preliminary examination of the former powerful Chinese military leader on a charge of accidental homicide was completed by the judge of the Oita district court. The verdict was that Chang must be formally tried, which corresponds to an indictment in American law.

Chang was allowed his freedom on his own recognizance.

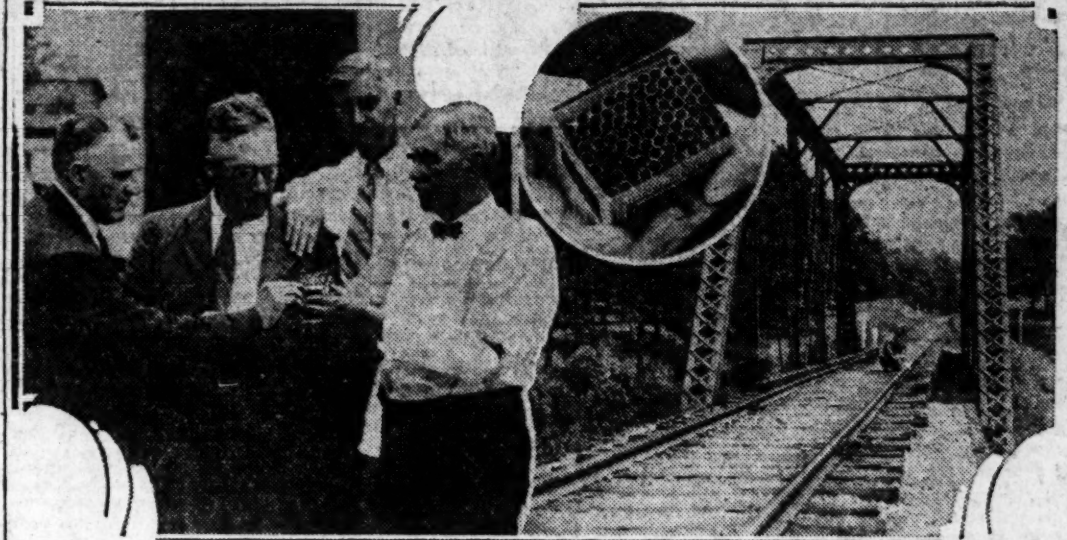

The Japanese penalty for accidental homicide is varying terms of imprisonment, although sentence frequently is suspended in accordance with the circumstances.

Kids' Picnic. Waycross, Ga., August 21.—(Special).—The annual picnic of the Salvation Army, given for the children of Waycross and this section, was held today near Waycross. The group assembled at the Salvation Army hall early this morning and the children were carried by automobile to the picnic. An all-day program of games was enjoyed, and a picnic spread was one of the features of the event.

of orthodox republican senators working in the interest of moderation. All that has been said so far is about the industrial parts of the bill. The agricultural parts are a different matter. Agriculture is a whole wants and needs the greater protection given it in this tariff revision, and is united in demanding it.

The evolution in industry described above should have its logical counterpart in an evolution of protection point of view. The democrats are just beginning to "sense" this. Agriculture wants the greater protection given by this bill, and agriculture is the chief industry of the south. Moreover, as respects industry, it is the south that is the home of the smaller and less developed industries which are the ones that want increases in tariff. It would not be extravagant to say when this bill is completed it will be in a form containing relatively more to interest the south than the east.

Negro Boy and Box of Dynamite Caps Cause Furore Along Park Row, New York

No end of excitement was created Wednesday when a small negro boy, seeking publicity and what-not, announced the find of a box of dynamite caps on a track of the Seaboard. He admitted his error later, however, and the furore died down. At the left, C. O. Cates, assistant superintendent of public works; Claud Mills, deputy warden at North camp; W. L. Sanders, camp clerk, and W. H. Morgan, crusher engineer, are seen examining the box of caps, a close-up of which is shown in the circle. At the right, the kneeling figure indicates the spot where the caps were reported found by the little "hero" of the episode.

A diminutive Georgia negro and a well-developed streak of inquisitiveness which prompted him to appropriate a box of dynamite caps at a grading camp near the Cheshire bridge road Wednesday were responsible for considerable excitement along Park row in New York City today.

New York telegraph editors were disappointed in their quest of a real story centering around a small Georgia boy, but the afternoon editions on Broadway had plenty of news punch.

It seems that George Mozley, 12, negro, his fancy caught by a box of dynamite caps, took them away from the grading camp, according to Special Agent J. G. Reed, of the Seaboard Air Line. For late, George learned that the things were dangerous, and he yearned to part company with them.

The best way to dispose of the caps and at the same time to earn a little glory occurred to him, and he walked into a store on Cheshire bridge road and said he had found the box on a rail of the Seaboard track over Little Peachtree creek.

On hearing the report, railroad officials took every possible means of averting an accident and sent track walkers out to inspect every foot of the right-of-way. County police began an investigation under Captain John C. Oliver.

To an experienced railroad man, the idea of a box of dynamite caps being used to wreck a train sounded a little far-fetched and Mr. Reed got behind of George and pinned him down to facts, he said. George then admitted that the box of caps had not even been near the trestle, the special agent reported to county police.

Meanwhile, the afternoon editions in New York classed the "finding" of the dynamite as an attempt to wreck the train on which the Clarke brothers were being carried to the Atlanta Federal penitentiary, this in spite of the fact that the Clarke brothers' train was not scheduled to pass the bridge until more than 12 hours after the dynamite cap incident.

Mr. Reed flung a monkey wrench into the machinery of a good story when he announced that George had confessed that the trestle story was all wrong. The real "explosion" followed when George's grandpa delivered a going-home spanking to his chastened little relative.

DR. BRADFIELD DIES

Prominent Physician Lived in McRae for 20 Years.

Dr. John R. Bradfield, one of the prominent physicians of middle Georgia, died Wednesday morning after a long illness at his home in McRae, where he had lived for the past 20 years. His brother, Dr. J. H. Bradfield, is superintendent of the Battle Hill sanatorium.

82 YEARS OF AGE, PENN DESCENDANT TO WED WOMAN 73

Los Angeles, August 21.—(AP)—Charles Penn, 82, who said he was a descendant of William Penn, has filed an application for a license to wed Mrs. Annie Farrell, 73. Penn, a retired rancher from Custer county, Neb., said he first met Mrs. Farrell 53 years ago, and recently renewed the acquaintance.

FORD TO CLOSE PLANTS IF PROHIBITION ENDS CITY DECLINES TO SELL WATERWORKS SYSTEM

Auto Manufacturer Says Gasoline and Booze Don't Mix.

Mayor Ragsdale Refuses Offer of Tampa Man, Acting for Unknown Client.

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Henry Ford threatens to close down his automobile plants if prohibition ends.

"If booze ever comes back to the United States I am through with manufacturing," he says in the September pictorial Review, appearing Friday.

"I would not be bothered with the problem of handling 200,000 men and trying to pay them wages which the saloons would take away from them. I wouldn't be interested in putting automobiles into the hands of a generation soggier with drink. Gasoline and booze don't mix; that's all."

Ford, always a friend of prohibition, believes it is 90 per cent effective in the United States, with the remaining 10 per cent made up largely of the wealthy class, the criminal class and the abandoned class.

Because leading hostesses have said, "No more cocktails on my table," it is no longer smart to serve drinks, he says.

Regarding his plan to shut down his factories "if booze returns," Ford says:

"With booze in control we can count on only two or three effective days work a week in the factory—and we would destroy the short-day and five-day week which sober industry has in."

"When men drank two or three days a week, industry had to have a 10 or 12-hour day and a six or seven-day week. With sobriety the working man can have an eight-hour day and a five-day week with the same or greater pay."

"I would not be able to build a car that will run 200,000 miles if booze were around; I wouldn't have accurate workmen, and without accurate workmen I could not get necessary precision in work even with machinery, because more people are making the machinery to make the car today than make the car itself."

Ford says, "Prohibition began at

The Atlanta waterworks system is not for sale, at any price. Mayor Ragsdale Wednesday informed W. M. Tarpley, of Tampa, Fla., who indicated that he would buy the city's waterworks system, for cash.

Mr. Tarpley, representing clients whose identity he did not reveal, in a letter to the mayor asked if the city "would be interested in selling the waterworks plant for cash at a fair and reasonable price, based on its present physical value, to one of the largest operating companies in the United States in position to take care of every need in order to give citizens the best of service together with good water, and make all necessary improvements in the future." The mayor replied that the city would not be interested.

The waterworks system is conservatively valued at $12,000,000. Physical property, including land and buildings, is valued in the city comptroller's last report at $10,104,828.87, and the franchise at $2,500,000. Income from the system last year was $1,770,516.89, of which only $946,656.89 was expended by the system, the remainder being turned over to the city treasury.

Alderman Claude L. Ashley, chairman of the waterworks committee, further indicated that the city would not be interested in the sale of the system, even if $50,000,000 were offered for it.

home with women who wanted better home conditions," and he points out that if women uphold the law in their homes we need neither very little about other places where the law is violated—they will automatically disappear." The motor car magnate denies that prohibition was "forced" on the country. He adds that "personal liberty is so much increased by the nation's emancipation from alcoholic addiction that it is childish wildness to talk about infringement of rights."

MIRACLES of Coolness

Delightful beverages and ice creams for hot summer days

This minute you start eating or drinking something cool, the whole temperature around you seems to improve. Business men and women know this when they order ice cream for lunch, or step up to the soda fountain for a delicious iced or carbonated drink. Menu-planners are aware of it when they order sherbet, frozen pudding, or bisque to be delivered at the dessert hour.

Aside from the immediate refreshing effect, such drinks and desserts cheer the eye by their colors and the cool click of ice. Their very elements are simple and healthful. Consider the milk, eggs, sugar, and flavoring that comprise ice cream... the clear fruit juices, ginger ales and sugar that go into most carbonated drinks. Also, the milk in ice cream, the amount of water and juice in the iced drinks, provide the liberal quantity of water that is a necessity in hot days.

Try soda fountain servings at home. Chocolate ice cream sundaes are possible at a minute's notice. Order the ice cream from the nearest dealer—pour on the chocolate syrup from the tin in your refrigerator. Ice cream sandwiches are a delightful diversion. Put them together with wafers, and cover with chocolate, marshmallow, or fruit sauce. Substitute frozen punch for the usual floating punch at parties. Keep cones handy—and don't believe that only children like ice cream cones. Keep ginger ale and other delightful carbonated drinks in the refrigerator. The Sugar Institute.

FEDERAL FRUIT FLY REGULATIONS TO BE OBSERVED

Orlando, Fla., August 21.—(AP)—Federal regulations, prohibiting the shipment of fruit next season from any property in zone two of the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine area, upon which the host-free period was not observed during the summer months, are to be strictly enforced, it was announced today at fly eradication headquarters here.

The announcement stated that Charles M. Hunt, agent of the plant quarantine and control administration, United States department of agriculture, had sent letters to all district inspectors informing them that no permits would be issued for the interstate movement of citrus fruits produced on premises within any protective zone unless the host-free period had been maintained.

Request that the district inspectors submit the names of all persons failing to comply with the order, also was contained in the letter.

"ALL MEN HONEST," JOHN DEE CASHES JOHN DOE'S CHECK

Chattanooga, Tenn., August 21.—(AP)—John Dee belongs to that group of idealists who believe all men are honest and there is nothing in a name instead of to that army of realists who cash checks cautiously.

So John Dee cashed John Doe's check.

Doe is a shoemaker here and when a likeable person presented him a check signed "John Doe," he handed the notorious Mr. Doe the dough with a gesture of good fellowship and service.

Police are investigating, but have made no arrests. They are puzzled over the audacity of a man who would present a John Doe check, and the kindness of any man who would cash one.

ALABAMA LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS AS SESSION ENDS

Mobile, Ala., August 21.—(AP)—Alabama Legionnaires concluded their eleventh annual convention here today with the election of George M. Grant, of Troy, as the department commander for the ensuing year. Within an hour after the election, the upward of 1,000 veterans had started or made preparations to return home.

Grant, a Spanish-American and World War veteran, was elected by a majority of four votes over Rufus Bether, commander of Birmingham Post No. 1, and L. S. Montford, of Newbern. The vote was grant 222; Bether 139; Montford 79.

Mobile with 34 votes and Bessemer with 24 lining up solidly behind Grant won for him the election.

George C. Lewis, of Russellville; Ed R. Wren, of Talladega; P. S. Jackson, of Peterman, and Richard T. Rives, of Montgomery, were elected vice commanders.

WATCH IS GIVEN TO CAPT. JACKSON AT ARMY DINNER

Fort Screven, Ga., August 21.—(AP)—Presentation of a watch to Captain Thomas Jackson, for three years instructor of the 325th infantry, but recently transferred to Baltimore, was a feature of the annual dinner of the 325th and 326th regiments here last night. The presentation was made by Captain James Fort, of America. Captain Jackson replied and paid tribute to the ability of the officers of the 325th. Mayor Gamble, of Tybee, and other military officers were speakers.

olic Layman.

Milwaukee, Wis., August 21.—(P)—Martin H. Carmody, Grand Rapids, Mich., tonight began his second term as supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus after receiving the highest papal honor that can be bestowed upon the Catholic layman.

As Supreme Secretary William J. McGlinchey, New Haven, Conn., announced that Mr. Carmody had been unanimously re-elected supreme knight today by the delegates to the order's forty-seventh annual convention here.

The Most Rev. Henry Joseph O'Leary, Edmont, Alta., Canada, appeared before the assembly to present the papal honor. It was the grand cross of the Knights of St. Gregory the Great.

The letter accompanying the decoration stated the award was made "because of your generous services for religion and to the American Association of the Knights of Columbus."

It was signed by Pietro, Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state. Pope Pius XI. indicated his further interest in the order's activities by sending a papal blessing and his good wishes. His message, also signed by Cardinal Gasparri, followed.

The holy father bestows apostolic blessing on officers and members of the K. of C.

H. L. SCHLESINGER PAID TRIBUTE BY OLD GUARD

Memorial Adopted in Honor of Prominent Business Man and Civic Leader.

Tribute to the late Harry L. Schlesinger, prominent Atlanta business man and civic leader, was paid in the form of a memorial adopted by the Old Guard. The memorial was made public Wednesday by Walter Scott Coleman, chairman of the memorial committee.

"The subject of this memorial was born in Vienna, Austria, and came to America at 9 years of age, casting his lot with our people and winning a business success in Atlanta. Going from New York to Chattanooga, Tenn., then to Rome, Ga., where he married Miss Ella Cohen, a beautiful and lovely lady, and later removed to Atlanta, the scene of his real activities as a citizen and business leader. He died in Ashbury Park, N. J., while sojourning on July 12, 1929.

"This remarkable man possessed many admirable traits: genial, sympathetic, generous and philanthropic—and so far as known he died without an enemy. He remembered the poor, institutions and individuals in need of his bounty, and numerous deeds of kindly charity marked his private life. He was an energetic worker in all civic movements, always aiding his patriotic endeavors, and aligned himself unreservedly with every progressive effort to advance his city and state. Harry Schlesinger was ever an ardent friend, an obliging neighbor, and a clean, high-class citizen.

"He was always a generous patron of good causes, and his friends and community alike held no more loyal ally than this splendid gentleman. He was a devoted and active member of the Old Guard, holding its memories and traditions warmly to the last, and went to his final reward beloved of all comrades and universal respect from this organization, with the warmest assurances that we share with them the splendid heritage of his good name and the deeds of an honorable life."

M. W. KLOTZ NAMED
DIVISION MANAGER FOR PREMIER MALT

Appointment of M. W. Klotz as division manager of the Premier Malt Sales company for the Atlanta territory was announced Wednesday. In his new duties, Mr. Klotz assumed charge of sales of Blue Ribbon Malt for the five states served by the Atlanta office.

Included in the Atlanta division are Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina and Alabama. The formation of the division serving the southeast from Atlanta is indicative of the increase in the policy recently adopted by the company throughout the country.

Mr. Klotz expressed his enthusiasm over the territory that has been placed under his charge. Having moved his family to Atlanta from one of the western divisions of his company, he expressed the hope of being able to make his home here permanently. Following his first tour over a portion of his territory, he remarked that Atlanta is ideally located to serve the vast southeastern region.

Bright Prospects for 1929 Southeastern Fair Indicated at Meeting of Association Council

The executive council of the Southeastern Fair Association gathered Wednesday to discuss plans for the 1929 event. Those shown in the picture above are, bottom row, left to right, Clark Howell, Sr., H. G. Hastings, Mell R. Wilkinson, President A. C. Newell, of the Southeastern Fair Association; Ivan E. Allen, J. B. Nevin, Ben S. Barker. Middle row, Lee Ashcraft, James T. Ozburn, L. H. Beall, John E. White, William E. Saunders, Arthur Kitchen, Robert Troutman, W. O. Foote, Troy Chastain. Top row, C. L. Chosewood, Oscar H. Williamson, L. H. Sudderth, Horace Russell, Oscar Mills, W. G. Cooper.

Reports from General Manager Oscar Mills and others indicating exceedingly bright prospects for a greatly enlarged Southeastern Fair with new features in exhibits and amusements were presented to the executive council of the fair association at a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Special efforts are being made to bring in aviation for the first time as a feature of the exhibitions of southern products and it is hoped that Atlanta-made planes will be ready for display.

Mr. Mills reported that all space for county exhibits of farm products had been taken and that he had been forced to decline applications from seven counties. The exhibits of fruit and animals, he reported, were making great progress, as were many others, including the educational exhibits sponsored by Georgia Tech, the State College of Agriculture and the public schools.

The exhibit of articles produced by negroes has grown to such proportions that the fair association is seriously considering the advisability of putting on next year a special fair for negroes with ample space for all their displays, he stated.

Indicative of the diversification of entertainment features being provided this year, a tribe of Indians will come to Atlanta during the fair, accompanied by cowboys, cowgirls, and 150 horses attached to King's Wild West Show. The Indians, many of whom are graduates of Carlisle, will re-enact frontier scenes in true wild west style.

Alfred C. Newell, president of the association, who presided at the meeting, called on Walter G. Cooper, manager of the industrial exhibits, who reported that a large part of the space in the manufacturers' building was taken.

A modern newspaper was termed the highest type of manufactured product, in which brains are the material. Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, and James Nevin, editor of The Atlanta Georgian, were invited to make exhibits of their processes and products. Mr. Howell promised his full co-operation.

John E. White, chairman of the park committee of city council, called attention to the fact that airplanes are to be made in Atlanta and expressed the opinion that an airplane exhibit would be of great interest to the public. The suggestion was enthusiastically received and it was agreed that the matter should be taken up with the company.

Attendance at the meeting Wednesday afternoon was said to have been the largest in the history of the fair association. Those present included Alfred C. Newell, Clark Howell, James B. Nevin, Mell R. Wilkinson, Philip Alston, Horace Russell, E. J. Paxton, H. G. Hastings, Ivan Allen, R. S. Barker, Oscar Mills, Walter O. Foote, Robert Troutman, Lee Ashcraft, L. H. Beall, Troy Chastain, C. A. Kitchings, J. T. Ozburn, W. E. Saunders, Oscar Williamson, John A. White, Charles L. Chosewood, Walter G. Cooper and others.

Suicide Feared, Police Searching For Missing Wife

County police Wednesday were on the lookout for Mrs. E. W. Smith, of 98 Trinity avenue, "dead or alive," following a report over the telephone Tuesday night that the woman had jumped into the Chattahoochee at the Bolton bridge.

Sergeant W. C. Chapplear informed E. W. Smith of a mysterious report by telephone and Smith told county police that his wife left home Tuesday morning. Smith expressed the opinion to county police that it was Mrs. Smith who called the headquarters.

The anonymous telephone caller reported that Mrs. Smith had jumped into the river, but the call was interrupted before Sergeant Chapplear could secure many details. Investigation at Bolton and other bridges revealed no trace of a drowning, and a boy who had been fishing under the bridge at Bolton at the time of the reported drowning told police that no one jumped in the water while he was there.

County police are searching for an automobile in which Mrs. Smith drove away from her home Tuesday, it was said.

ENDURANCE PLANE PLUNGES INTO WATER

San Francisco, Cal., August 21.—(P)—The endurance monoplane San Francisco lay at the bottom of San Francisco bay today and its lone pilot, Donald Templeman, former army flyer, was recovering from the effects of the plunge which ended his undertaking last night.

Apparently fatigued, Templeman misjudged his distance from the ground as he was circling Mills field in the thirty-sixth hour of his flight. The craft struck an electric transmission line and fell into the bay, a few feet from the shore. Templeman swam out, uninjured.

The flight ended at 9:47 p. m., 35 hours 38 minutes after it started. No official mark has been set for this kind of flying, but at least one solo flyer has remained longer in the air than Templeman. Herbert J. Eddy recently remained aloft 38 hours 56 minutes and 36 seconds at Los Angeles without taking fuel in flight.

COPS WANT JOBS

Elizabethton, Tenn., August 21.—(P)—Elizabethton's ousted policemen want to go back to work. A suit filed by them against the city has caused Chancellor S. E. Chancellor Miller said the force will be reinstated automatically if the city does not answer the suit.

ATLANTA POPULATION IS PLACED AT 361,000

Official estimate of the population of greater Atlanta under the new borough system is placed at 361,000, making it the largest city in the south with the exception of New Orleans, according to the report of the special committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to study the question.

"A committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been making a study of the population of greater Atlanta under the new borough system," stated B. S. Barker, executive vice president, "using all available means of obtaining those statistics, based on nationally recognized methods of arriving at population estimates."

"This committee has arrived at the following statement as to the population under the new borough plan, covering greater Atlanta as of January 1, 1930:

ATLANTA 280,000
Decatur 15,500
East Point 10,000
College Park 7,000
Hapeville 4,500
Unincorporated area 43,500

Total population 361,000
This estimate is based on actual count of families made in November, 1926, and the normal growth since that, according to recognized sources.

The Chamber of Commerce recently estimated the population of Atlanta in the corporate limits as 273,000, a substantial increase over the census of 1920, which gave the figure as 200,016. The total in 1910 was 154,800 and in 1900, 80,872.

Under the new system, Atlanta will include parts of Fulton, DeKalb and Clayton counties, which have a population of 361,000.

Three notes to a young man expressed love the girl believed he had not returned. Another directed friends to draw her pay check and to pay her bills. She also left instructions regarding the collection of her insurance. Her family lives at Jonesville, Virginia.

One of the notes asked that a sweetheart's picture be buried with her. The man named in the note saw her before she died, but she was unable to speak to him.

DELEGATES ARE SILENT ON REPARATIONS MEET

Important Session Is Held
But Result Is Kept
From Public.

The Hague, August 21.—(P)—The six big powers which organized the reparations conference here took inventory today of what had been done in the past two weeks. A communiqué issued after today's meeting adjourned said that the conferees had examined measures to be adopted in order that results might be obtained.

Today's meeting was held at the request of Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, in a letter to Henri Jaspar of Belgium, president of the conference. The German statesman said that he desired to discuss with the other five powers what the right procedure should be in reparations after September 1 if the Young plan was not adopted.

It was no secret around German headquarters that the leader of the reich's delegation took this means of informing the other powers that Germany could not continue payment of annuities under the Dawes plan.

Herr Stresemann started the proceedings this afternoon but by what measures he proposed to save the conference from failure did not appear definitely either in the communiqué nor from the meager information obtainable from those who were present.

The other four creditor powers—France, Belgium, Italy and Japan—took a step in that direction earlier in the day when they decided to guarantee to Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, a minimum of 50 per cent of the amount which he has demanded as an addition to the share of Great Britain of the reparations under the Young plan.

SALVATION ARMY
PLEA ANSWERED
BY 200 FAMILIES

Old clothing, furniture, rugs and paper obtained in the campaign will finance the home for rehabilitation of men who are "down but not out" and provide a reserve store of clothing and bedding to meet the urgent needs of poor families of the city who will ask the Army's help with the first spell of cold weather within the next 60 days.

CHICAGO NEWS TAKES OVER DAILY JOURNAL

Papers To Be Issued From News Plant—Commercial Paper To Start.

Chicago, August 21.—(P)—The Chicago Daily Journal, the oldest daily newspaper in Illinois, announced today its publication was its final independent issue. Beginning tomorrow the Journal will be associated with The Chicago Daily News and the title of the enlarged newspaper will carry the full names of both.

The Chicago Daily News and Chicago Journal will be published at the Daily News plant.

The Journal plant tomorrow will begin publication of The Daily Commercial Chronicle, devoted to news of the stock exchange and business. Richard J. Finnigan, former editor of The Journal, will be editor of The Chronicle.

The Journal was purchased early this month by Walter Strong, publisher of The News. As definite plans for the associated newspapers had not been completed, The Journal continued separate publication. It was, however, under the editorial control of The News and the two papers exchanged features and staff writers.

"Both publications have been active forces in the life of Chicago," Mr. Strong said in The Journal's last issue. "Independently they have been able to accomplish much for the good of the city."

"But in unity of purpose and program there is strength. The Chicago Daily News and The Chicago Daily Journal associate their editorial activities so that they may better serve the readers of both publications and more efficiently forward the best interests of the community itself."

The Journal was founded in 1844. It was built up chiefly during the ownership of John C. Eastman, its publisher for 21 years. At his death in 1925 the paper was willed to a group of his employees, including Mr. Finnigan, who last year sold it to R. E. Thomason and associates.

3 NEW YORK BANKERS ENTER U. S. PEN HERE

Clarke Brothers and John E. Bouker Guarded From Public as They Begin Sentences.

James Rae Clarke, Philip L. Clarke and John E. Bouker, convicted of using the mails to defraud in connection with the recent sensational failure of the Clarke brothers' private bank in New York, were sentenced to terms of years in the federal penitentiary here Wednesday to serve their sentences. James Clarke is under an eight-year term while the others each have a year and a day.

Carefully guarded from newspaper photographers and reporters, a private car was shuffled from the downtown station to the tracks inside the station. The car contained, in addition to the bank officials, 22 other federal prisoners under sentence for various offenses.

Prison officials refused to discuss the arrival of the prisoners, which was similar to the entrance of George Remus into the pen. As a general rule prisoners are transported from the station in taxis, but in the case of "carload lots" the switch engine route is used.

Failure of the Clarke brothers' bank in New York in June caused a

WARTIME INDUSTRY DRAFT BILL PREPARED

Washington, August 21.—(United News.)—Legislation to draft industry in time of war has been prepared by the war department but whether it shall be sent to congress as an administration measure of preparation against some future national emergency has not been decided, the United News learned today.

Inquiry developed indications the entire draft project as it affects both men and industry may be scrapped in so far as the administration is concerned. A bill which would empower the president to draft all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45 in periods of national emergency was introduced in congress last May. Protests, including many from administration congressmen, overwhelmed the project. It subsequently was shown the man-power bill was not offered by the war department but was submitted to congress at the request of a member of the house military affairs committee. In the midst of the popular outcry against enactment of the bill without corresponding legislation affecting industry, Secretary of War Good repudiated the measure in its present form.

"It would be unjust," he said, "to pass a law to draft man-power without provision for drafting the industrial group which will produce materials the soldiers will use."

Good said the additional legislation would be ready within 90 days. Meantime, the army disclaimed all responsibility for the bill to draft man-power and no action was taken on it during the special session of congress. The greatest organized protest against enactment of the bill came from the American Legion, which demanded that industry be simultaneously subjected to restrictions against profiteering.

Draft Bill's Submission.

Now that the companion legislation has been prepared, there is some doubt, the United News was informed, regarding submission to congress. It is not believed there will be any administration support for legislation which would involve a general policy of taking over control of industrial organizations. If advocates of the industrial draft refused to be satisfied with less than transfer of control of individual industries to the government in time of emergency, the entire draft project probably would be dropped, the United News was informed. A section of war department opinion reflects the view that adequate taxation and remote control are the most feasible means of handling the problem of industry in war time.

Under a system of remote control, men employed in essential industries would be exempted from military draft. Manufacturers of non-essentials could be put on reduced production schedules or, if necessary, required to stop production. The main problem of profiteering would be solved, according to this plan, by assessing excess profits taxes and by controlling prices.

Same Procedure.

This procedure is similar to that followed during the late war campaign platform recognition to anti-profitting projects, including the industrial draft. The problems of developing a concrete scheme of operation, however, have been difficult.

Usually reliable sources today predicted the man-power and industrial bills would not be urged by the administration except at the demand of congress. Although the man-power bill as introduced last year was prepared by the war department, it is not now considered to have the status of an administration project.

ALVIN E. MERRITT SENTENCED TO DIE ON SEPTEMBER 6

September 6 was set Wednesday by Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy, of Fulton superior court, as the date for the electrocution of Alvin E. Merritt, who was charged on a charge of criminal assault. The passage of sentence followed expiration of a 10-day respite granted Merritt by Governor Hardman at the request of the Atlanta bar, in order that the clemency plea might be studied.

The re-sentencing of Merritt was delayed several hours Wednesday because of a ruling by Judge Pomeroy that Merritt would have to appear in court to hear the execution date fixed. Merritt was produced in court by means of a writ of habeas corpus, a procedure seldom used in cases of this nature.

Nevin To Speak at Unveiling Of Uncle Remus Memorial

Unveiling of the memorial tablet to Joel Chandler Harris, beloved Georgia author and creator of "Uncle Remus," will be conducted with elaborate ceremonies Sunday at the Calvary church, Asheville, N. C., known as "Westminster Abbey of the South," with James B. Nevin, editor of the Atlanta Georgian, as principal speaker of the day.

Serving as master of ceremonies will be Col. F. J. Faxon, while other prominent Georgians and southerners will assemble at the scene of the memorial exercises to pay tribute to the noted writer. Placing of the tablet to memorialize the famous Georgian is the fruition of a movement undertaken several years ago by the Uncle Remus Memorial Association.

Greetings will be read from Georgia senators, William J. Harris, Walter F. George, from Governor Hardman, the editors of many Georgia newspapers and presidents of colleges and many distinguished notables who have received invitations, but cannot avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

Musical Program.

A delightful musical program will be rendered, conspicuous among the features, by the "Bill Nye," the humorist, who is buried in the churchyard at old Calvary church, and George Hartich, of Asheville, N. C. The musical numbers will include negro spirituals sung by the choir of the church, and "The Prayer Perfect" by James Whitcomb Riley, a devoted friend of Joel Chandler Harris.

At the conclusion of the program in the church a processional will pass into the churchyard where, in the "short-story writers paragraph," the tablet to Mr. Harris will be unveiled with an impressive ceremonial. Little Robin Harris and Lucian Harris, III, great grandsons of "Uncle Remus," will place the tablet and unveil the bronze and granite shaft which gives the date and place of birth and death of Joel Chandler Harris, one of the most loved of all of Georgia's sons.

Atlantians to Attend.

A large number of Atlantians as well as others from all over the state will go on this pilgrimage. The Old

G. O. P. TO MAINTAIN CAPITAL HEADQUARTERS

Washington, August 21.—(P)—There is going to be politics the year round in Washington and year in and year out in Atlanta.

With the new democratic organization at the capital already in operation, the republicans are mobilizing a new setup which will get under way next month.

Claudius Huston, of Tennessee, is slated to be the new chairman of the republican national committee and the active general of the republican organization. A. F. Dawson, Iowa banker and former newspaperman, is to be the man on the job—the field captain, or executive officer.

Dawson is to take office here with the republican national committee and serve as liaison officer among all republican organizations including the national committee and the senatorial and congressional campaign committees.

A publicity drive, timed to coincide with the consideration of the tariff bill in the senate, is to be launched as a counter offensive to the democratic public campaign. Under the guidance of Charles Michelson, veteran newspaperman, the democrats have been making a target of the house tariff measure all summer and the republicans are aroused. Either Dawson or a "high powered" newspaperman is to take command of the republican campaign.

President Hoover is satisfied with the reorganized republican campaign plans and is credited by many with inspiring the arrangement. Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, also is regarded as one of those giving impetus to the program for a more active party organization.

The new permanent headquarters organization will be established early next month at the meeting of the republican national committee, called to select a successor to Dr. Hubert Work, who tendered his resignation as chairman last February.

There is still to be settled the question whether Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, will continue as the vice chairman of the republican national committee in charge of women's activities. Mrs. Hert submitted her resignation soon after Dr. Work, but some want her continued and negotiations looking to that end are now in progress.

It is the belief of the republican "high command" that the party campaign for the primary campaigns of next spring should be launched at once. Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, has been chosen by Senator Watson as the chairman of the senatorial campaign committee. Representative Wood, of Indiana, will continue, most likely, as chairman of the congressional committee in charge of the house campaign.

High Blood Pressure Due to Constipation and Biliousness

If Alertox Fails—
Call a Doctor

High blood pressure is both functional and organic, often produced by over-eating or mental strain, while constipation and biliousness are underlying causes. In either case, Alertox, a new chemical discovery, through a process of elimination, corrects all toxic conditions and tends to reduce pressure in the veins and arteries by carrying out, through the intestinal tract, excess water in the system which the sweat glands have failed to secrete.

After the first dose or two of Alertox you get a decided improvement in reduced blood pressure, also in your general health, because Alertox removes, in one action, more poison bile from the system than any other known formula, leaving you buoyant, vivacious and alert. At all druggists or sent direct upon receipt of price, 60c and $1. Alertox, Inc., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

NORTHEAST GEORGIA SEES BIG COTTON YIELD

Larger Crop Since 1924 Is Forecast for Section of State.

Athens, Ga., August 21.—(Special.)—Northeast Georgia farmers, having already tilled $174,000.75 into their fields from poultry sales this year, are now looking forward to harvesting the biggest cotton crop since 1924.

Indications are that more cotton will be harvested per acre in the eighth district this year than in several years, according to reports from agricultural agents in this section. The outlook is better in Clarke county than in any other section, it is announced.

A heavy infestation of the boll weevil has been the greatest hindrance to the growing of cotton, reports show. But they have been checked to a minimum by extensive poisoning. Only a severe drought or a renewed rampage of the weevil will stop one of the best crops in years.

Corn and other farm products, with the exception of peas and hay, are doing fine also, the reports show. Despite the fact that much of the corn was planted late, it is growing off nicely and only a long drought will seriously hamper it now. Due to the scarcity of seed very little peas were planted, and the hay crop is not as large as usual. Jackson county leads the field in this section in poultry sales since January 1, having sold a total of $42,002.04.

Franklin county was second with $28,191.54; Clarke county's sales amounted to $6,935.72; Elbert $25,013.92; Paulding $28,191.54; Greene $8,504; Hart $12,476.53; Jackson $42,192.04; Madison $15,139.93; Morgan $7,598.70; Newton $6,255.87; Oglethorpe $1,307.25; Putnam $3,806.53; Walton $3,909.27; Wilkes $11,608.44.

EMBARGO ON GRAIN ORDERED IN WEST

Railroads Block Rye, Barley and Oats Shipments to August 31.

St. Paul, Minn., August 21.—(P)—All railroads in the northwest today ordered an embargo on shipments of rye, barley and oats from August 23 to August 31, in compliance with recommendations made yesterday by the northwest shippers' advisory board.

Lack of storage space at terminal elevators and warehouses in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and Superior was given as the reason for the embargo. Officials of the shippers' advisory board said they hoped further embargoes might be avoided, although the movement of grain about September 1 will govern the decision at that time.

Loading and unloading of cars at terminal markets have been delayed, it was pointed out, because of sluggish demand for rye, barley and oats, which have been shipped in unusually heavy amounts for this time of the year. The heavy movement of these grains has hampered movement of wheat, corn, and flax, for which there is a more active market.

XXVII INSTALLMENT.

Mr. Bundy walked ahead, and it was his hand that thrust upon the connecting door. He paused an instant, surveying the room, and then nodded with what might have been mistaken as placid affability to Mortimer Blade, who sat with back to the wall at a table a few feet to the left.

Mr. Blade looked up quickly, but his lips, and frowned as he numbered the party who clustered the opening.

"Good evening," he said shortly. "We hope," said Mr. Bundy, "you are unoccupied."

"And what of it?" Blade asked. "We wish," said Mr. Bundy, "a few moments of your time."

Richard Lane, thrusting himself suddenly forward from between Damon and Pythias, demanded, "Where is she?"

Now whatever may be said of Mortimer Blade, he was not without a certain physical courage. Also he was equipped with that sort of self-respect, a face-saving self-respect, which strengthened him to maintain a bold, not to say belligerent, front in face of the patent threat which impended.

"Ah, Richard," he said ironically. "Did you choose our company?"

"Where is she?" demanded Richard a second time.

Mr. Bundy touched the young man's shoulder. "You're interrupting," he said, and advanced to the edge of the table. The five young men advanced as well, towering over Blade slightly.

"We have been looking for you," said Mr. Bundy.

"You've found me," Blade said shortly.

"Yes," said Mr. Bundy, and paused. "Yes, we've found you."

Tom and Molly came anxiously from the bar at the sound of voices, and Tom stepped forward. "What can I do for you gentlemen?" he asked.

"Nothing at the moment," said Mr. Bundy.

"We can't have any trouble here, sir," said Mr. Bundy, "is a family affair." He said this as it explained all and covered any possible objection. At least it satisfied himself, for he turned to Blade.

"I don't know," he said, "why none of your family have been blackmailers before, but they haven't. Yours is the honor of being the first."

"Oh, get ahead with the rough stuff," Blade said.

Mr. Bundy shook his head. "It was telling Mr. Tajima about the revolver that did it," he said. "That wasn't astute. Naturally you would not be in ecstasies with Colburn's servant. He'd be blackmailing you, too. So I investigated Mr. Tajima. I doubt if he even knew what all this talk means. Just words. Does Mr. Tajima know the real facts about Colburn?"

"What's this?" asked Richard harshly. "What's the meaning of this?"

"Why," said Mr. Bundy, in his gracious voice, "this man has been trying to blackmail me. He hired a Japanese gambler man to become a spying butler. Twenty-five thousand dollars he wanted for hush money."

"Did he try it on Martha?" asked Lane.

"The Japanese called on her," said Mr. Bundy.

Damon and Pythias were quick and very strong. They held Richard by the arms until he perceived the futility of his efforts to reach his brother.

"Yes," said Bundy, "he terrorized Martha."

"If he did that," rasped Richard Lane, "if he played on Martha's fears to make her come to him—I'll kill him."

Blade showed his teeth in an unpleasant smile. "How brotherly!" he said.

"Your family," said Mr. Bundy, "have never been famous for accord. . . . Perhaps you recall the last time a Blade man became involved with a Bundy woman."

"This," said Blade, "is the 20th century."

"We Bundy's," said the old gentleman, "see no difference between centuries in such matters. Where is Martha?"

"That's your responsibility," said Blade rashly. "Go and find out."

There was a concerted movement inward, which Mr. Bundy halted with upraised hands. "There are two possibilities," he said. "Either you have blackmailled her into giving herself to you or you have frightened her into doing something in desperation. Martha is a proud girl. . . . In such a situation she might do anything—anything but the right thing, which was to come to her family. In either case you have placed us in your debt."

"Go on and pay," said Blade.

"You note," said Mr. Bundy, "we do not mention financial matters—not even that the paying of this blackmail would ruin us. That has become insignificant. Nothing matters to us but Martha. She is a Bundy, my daughter, and the sister of my sons. We want her."

"Then," said Blade, "go find her."

"Is that," asked Mr. Bundy, "your last word?"

Blade shrugged his shoulders. "I give you the last chance to clear yourself. What have you done with my daughter?"

"When you find her," Blade said through his teeth, "ask her. She'll enjoy telling you."

Once more Richard Lane's voice broke through, harsh, quivering with rage. "You—you dog!" he said.

Then, with startling suddenness, the light ceased to be. In the twinkling of an eye the graciously lighted room became a place of utter blackness. For a moment all remained motionless; then someone caught his breath; a voice—possibly Theron's—called, "Hey!"

From a point not six feet from the table the narrow ray of an electric hand torch reached through the blackness, a menacing finger stretching through the air to touch and illuminate the whiteness of Mortimer Blade's breast. It rested there steadily for a perceptible interval. One might have counted five. . . . Then a swift, more powerful dart of reddish yellow light, a crash, an acrid odor—and blackness again!

Each man reached out instinctively to touch his neighbor. There was confusion of voices, a shuffling of invisible movement. . . . and as suddenly as it had departed the light was on again. . . . They looked; the five young men and Mr. Bundy looked across the table. There was Mortimer Blade, slumped against the wall, pallid of face, with closed eyes, and high upon the left side of his white bosom a tiny hole with inwardly bent edges!

"Why?" began Mr. Bundy in a shaken voice. But he did not finish. A rustle, a sob at his left drew his gaze, and there, in an overlarge, oversize boudoir gown, one hand clutching at her throat, stood Martha Bundy. . . . And before her feet, were two objects: an electric hand torch and a revolver.

She tottered forward a step. "Father. . . . Father!" she said in a voice that was little more than a breath.

"Martha! . . . Mr. Bundy thrust aside his sons, but it was Richard Lane who caught her in his arms as she swayed as soon as fragile poppy stem might sway before a cruel gust. He lifted her, stood erect holding her close, standing as if at bay and challenged them with fierce eyes.

"Martha!" said her father again, but she did not answer; her lids were closed upon waxen cheeks.

Mr. Bundy lifted his shoulders as if adjusting a weight; he seemed to grow in stature and in the dignity of command.

"Damon—the front. Pythias, see that these people are quiet." He motioned toward Tom and Molly. Then, turning toward Blade, "Is he dead?"

Gelon and Theron were bending over the unconscious young man, stripping away shirt and undergarments to be at the wound. Theron lifted his ear from the breast. "Alive," he said shortly.

"The wound's high," said Gelon. "I thought," said Theron over his shoulder, "we Bundy's paid the piper."

"This," said Mr. Bundy, "is a card of another color. Martha. . . . I shot him," said Richard Lane pitifully.

Mr. Bundy disregarded him and strode to Mortimer Blade to examine him. "If it didn't pierce the lung—" he said. Then he turned abruptly upon Tom and Molly. "Can you keep shut mouths?" he asked.

"If we're let, so—" The police "Whisper," said Gelon.

"Whatever happened," said Mr. Bundy, "didn't happen here. Only men Bundy's were here."

"Sure," said Damon. "We got you." "He came in his closed car," said Mr. Bundy.

It was Gelon who caught the idea. "His hat and stick," he said. "I'll drive. . . . You, Theron, hoist him. Arm about each of our necks."

"Take a look at the street," directed Pythias.

"That's a drunk," said Gelon. "Passed out." "That'll do the trick," said Theron.

Richard Lane stood, still holding Martha. "I shot him," he said pleadingly. "I tell you I shot him."

"Any of us might have," said Damon. "Don't crab the act."

Jimmy appeared. "The street's almost clear," he said, and then, "I'd done it myself."

Molly and Kat—and now Miss Patty—hovered about Martha. "Lay her down," said Molly, and then, unnecessarily, "she's fainted."

"Is he—dead?" asked Miss Patty in a queer voice.

"No. . . . Listen, all of you." It was Mr. Bundy speaking. "Nothing happened here. We're taking him away. If he dies—he was shot somewhere else. . . . But above all things, my daughter was not present."

"Yes, sir," said Tom.

Mr. Bundy stood frowning. "I go with Theron and Gelon. You other boys tend to Martha."

"Take her home?" asked Pythias.

"Don't take her out till she can walk," said Mr. Bundy. "Two folks being helped out of the same place is too much of a good thing. . . . Get along, boys."

Theron and Gelon carried Mortimer Blade to the foot of the stairs, then arranging him in the posture of an intoxicated man who has lost his legs, they crossed the walk quickly and placed him in the back seat of the car.

The car moved away from the curb without causing comment. Gelon, at the wheel, whisked northward, crossed Queensboro bridge, and presently, on country roads, pressed his foot upon the accelerator, and the car leaped forward.

"The worst thing about women," said Mr. Bundy, with feeling, "is you never can tell which way they'll jump. . . . Now we got to pull this man through." He ended somewhat naively. "Killing a man's apt to rest heavy on a girl's mind."

"Maybe," said Theron, "she didn't do it."

"Then who did?"

"Lane said he did."

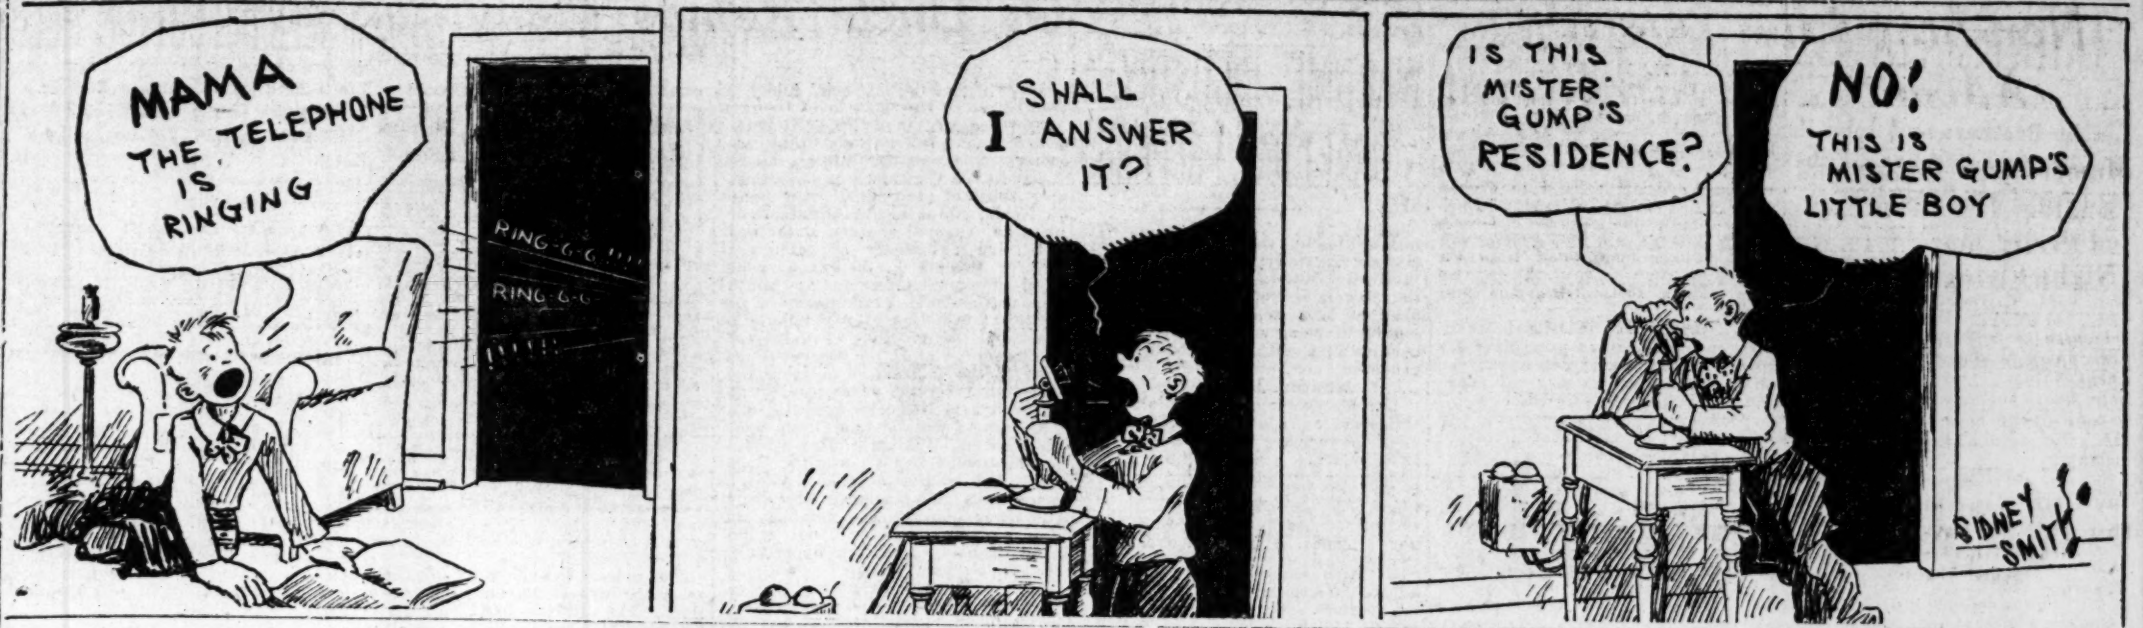

"For a Blade," said Mr. Bundy, "that boy's quite a fellow."

"Maybe he did, all the same."

"Fiddlesticks!" said Mr. Bundy. "Nobody but a woman could shoot wide at that distance." He coughed and cleared his throat. "Anyhow," he said, "Martha's got spunk."

Before Baby Comes

Comfort and ease for the expectant mother

UNLESS the muscles, tissues and nerves "give" easily at the abdomen enlarges, much pain and untold suffering may result. As the abdomen increases in size strains increase in intensity, exhausting the expectant mother with perhaps ill effects upon the unborn child. More important still, it is to have the tissues and muscles as "elastic" as possible when the great moment of childbirth arrives.

Countless thousands of expectant mothers for over 60 years have used "Mother's Friend"—that time-tested, scientifically-prepared skin lubricant and pain-reliever, which originated in the prescription of an eminent obstetrician—and have been relieved of the strain and the pain, the discomfort and the nervousness that come from the distention and the stretching of the skin and the tissues, which attend this delicate condition.

You owe yourself the comfort "Mother's Friend" gives during the waiting months. It is soothing, relaxing, comforting! It is not a drug to be taken. It is used externally only—gently rubbed into the skin. Clean and pleasant to the touch. Brings relief promptly. Very valuable in keeping the breasts in good condition. Also puts you in fine shape for the approaching ordeal. "Mother's Friend" is on sale at all drug stores. $1.25 per bottle.

Free Book A message with it tonight will relieve your strained condition. A booklet on "Things to Know Before Baby Comes" will be mailed in plain envelope, free, on request. Address: Bradfield Regulator Co., Dept. D, Atlanta, Ga.

KOTEX
The New Sanitary Pad which deodorizes

WARM days. Clothing reduced to a minimum. Then is when women really appreciate the superior designing of Kotex.

Kotex, you know, is the sanitary pad with rounded, tapered corners. It really fits. Not a revealing outline can show, even when worn with your very lightest summer clothing.

Kotex is so comfortable, too. Bulk and weight are unnecessary because Kotex is so very absorbent. The air-cooled layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding keep Kotex light and comfortable though worn for hours.

And what a relief to know that Kotex deodorizes completely—so much more important in summer. The Cellucotton layers can easily be adjusted as needed. You dispose of Kotex just like tissue, thus eliminating fuss and laundering.

OUR CLUB—By Seckatary Hawkins

YESTERDAY JERRY MOORE TOLD ME HE WOULD SHOW ME WHERE CLARENCE WILKS WAS. HE GOT INTO MY CANOE WITH ME. JERRY PADDLED DOWN TO THE WILKES THAT HIDE THE ENTRANCE TO CAVE RIVER. "HE'S HIDING IN HERE!" SAID JERRY.

DOWN THE DARK TUNNEL WE WENT. WE LANDED ON THE FLAT ROCK IN THE BIG CAVE ROOM, AND JERRY LIT A TORCH. I FOLLOWED HIM UP THE ROCKY STEPS UNTIL WE SAW DAYLIGHT SHINING THROUGH A HOLE ABOVE US.

GEE! IT SURE WAS A PRETTY CAVE ROOM THAT WE CAME INTO. CLARENCE WAS SITTING BY A FIRE. "HE HAD A PLACE TO SLEEP AND EVERYTHING. CLARENCE JUMPED UP. "HELLO HAWKINS!" HE YELLED. "I SURE AM GLAD TO SEE YOU!"

SAID, "CLARENCE, YOU ARE GOING TO GET IT. WHEN YOUR POP FINDS OUT YOU DIDN'T STAY AT YOUR AUNT ANNE'S, WHAT DO YOU MEAN, LIVING HERE IN THIS CAVE LIKE A BAT OR AN OWL OR SOMETHING?"

LABOR STRIKE AT CLINCHFIELD MILLS STOPPED

Marion, N. C., August 21.—(AP)—The strike of the Clinchfield cotton mill today apparently had settled down to an endurance contest between the striking members of the United Textile Workers of America and the management, which is attempting to operate with non-union employees.

The mill resumed operation at 1 o'clock yesterday after three weeks of idleness. The union picketers, who had forcibly prevented a scheduled reopening of the mill on Monday, permitted the non-union workers to pass through the mill gates unopposed.

Their attitude of peaceful picketing was in accordance with an agreement reached by the mill management, union leaders and N. A. Townsend, executive counselor to Governor Gardner, after a conference.

Under its terms the strikers agreed to preserve order and permit non-union workers to enter the mill and the management promised that no labor would be imported.

Despite the agreement national guardsmen, who were called to the scene Monday after the strikers forced non-union workers to remain away from the mill, were held on duty.

WATER BOY KING OF AFGHANISTAN TIRES OF CONTEST

Peshawar, British India, August 21.—(AP)—Habibullah Khan, as Bacheo Saka, Afghanistan's water boy king, calls himself, has become depressed. Afghan reports state, because of the successes of Nadir Khan who is contesting him for his throne.

Consequently he has given orders that anyone mentioning the name of Nadir Khan shall be nailed publicly to a wall by the ears and afterward blown from a cannon. Rebel tribesmen fighting against Habibullah, who was said to be growing more and more popular, have prepared three lines of trenches for the defense of Kabul itself.

MILE-LONG VACUUM TUBE TO BE MADE FOR LIGHT TEST

Chicago, August 21.—(AP)—A vacuum tube one mile long is being built for use by Professor A. A. Michelson, of the University of Chicago, in a new test to determine the speed of light.

Back from California, the scientist explained that the test could not be completed this year without the tube. He said he has determined the speed of light to be 186,284 miles a second, but he fears this may be a few inches off. The proposed experiment, now set for next year, for the purpose of checking the accuracy of the previous computation.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

BOWSER COMFORTS THE LITTLE DOG.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

A lesson that is learned in pain. You'll seldom need to learn again.—Bowser the Hound.

It was a sick little dog who lay in Farmer Brown's dooryard while Bowser gravely looked on. He was sick to his stomach—very sick.

"Does your mouth taste bad?" inquired Bowser gravely.

The little dog looked mournfully up at Bowser. "It tastes awful, simply awful," said he. "Never in all my life has my mouth tasted as it does now."

"I thought it would," said Bowser, nodding his head. "I thought it would. That's why I warned you to leave Old Mr. Toad alone."

The little dog looked as if he didn't quite understand. "What," he demanded, "did Old Mr. Toad have to do with it?"

"Everything," replied Bowser. "He had everything to do with it. I don't understand," said he.

"You'll learn," replied Bowser, "if you bite many more toads."

"I'll never touch another toad as long as I live if it's going to make me feel like this," declared the little dog mournfully. "But I don't understand

Miss Brown Weds Walter Gordy At Ceremony in Milledgeville

Milledgeville, Ga., August 21.—One of the loveliest weddings of this season in Milledgeville was that which united Miss Anne Righton Brown, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Hixson Brown, of Milledgeville, and Walter Gordy, of Atlanta. The scene of the wedding was the Milledgeville Baptist church, and the nuptial vows were taken at high noon Tuesday in the presence of a fashionable assemblage of society.

The church was a scene of rare beauty, decorated in southern style and white flowers, softly lighted with cathedral candelabra. Preceding the wedding Mrs. Marshall Bland rendered a prenuptial program of exquisite organ music.

First to enter were the groomsmen, Lennis Jackson, of Stevens Pottery, and James Brown, brother of the bride. Following was Miss Alice McCraw, who was exquisitely gowned in a beautiful model of blue organza.

The bride was in a gown of white, made with the V-shaped neck in the back, and beautiful tiered skirt, knee length in front and trailing to ankle length in the back. The draping was of heavy lace border and blue velvet.

With this costume Miss McCraw wore a becoming picture hat of blue and carried pink chador.

Kenneth Campbell and Lloyd Solomon, of Atlanta, entered next. They were followed by Miss Virginia McKee, whose lovely gown was fashioned like that of the other bridesmaids, and was of orchid. She carried deep cream-colored gladioli in an arm bouquet.

Forsyth Gordy followed, and next came Miss Margaret Yarbrough, gowned in a becoming shade of yellow organza and carrying an arm bouquet of yellow gladioli.

Miss Elizabeth Fraley, maid of honor, was lovely in a green organza bouffant model, and she carried rose-colored gladioli. Just preceding the bride came the dainty flower girl, Betty Canty Allen, cousin of the bride and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Allen. She carried the flowers in a pink basket, and she was charmingly attired in pink crepe de chine, with pink socks and shoes and a pink hat.

The lovely bride, who entered with her uncle, Elbert Bivins, of New Orleans, was never lovelier than in her handsome bridal costume of tan georgette, made in tiers slightly draping in the back. She wore a becoming hat of the same shade, and carried matching accessories. Her bridal bouquet was of bride roses showered with valley lilies. Fifty Jackets Expected To Report at Flats on September 3 CARDS ELIMINATED AT WASHINGTON

ALEX EXPECTS FIFTY JACKETS ON SEPTEMBER 3

Tech Coaches To Begin Task of Strengthening Lineup.

By Herb Clark.
Less than two weeks remain before some 50 young huskies, the raw material from which the 1929 Georgia Tech grid-iron machine is to be formed, will report to Grant field and Coach Alexander, head mentor at the Flats. The starting date is September 3.

Between the close of the past season and the advent of this Alexander has lost two major units from his team.

The first, the center-quarter-back back-to-back pair, seems to present few difficulties. "Cedar" Rusk, captain-elect of the new Tornado, is fully capable of holding down the center post, and Law and Muse have had experience with the Tech system and are ready for reserve duty. Which ever of these lads is in the game is expected to fit into Alexander's plans for quarterbacks, with Dunlap, Floyers, and Colvin as the probable choices.

The second unit includes the entire right side of the line, and it is the solution of this problem which has Alex tossing in his sleep now.

Wadley, the end; Speer, the tackle, and Drennon, the guard, on this wing, are all lost. Wadley and Drennon have been given their diplomas and Speer has left school.

These three huskies played side by side through every game for two seasons and knew each other's style so well that they were like three close-linked parts of a machine, opening wide holes on the offense and stopping opposing plays at the line on defense. With this power plant lost, the Tech coaching staff is faced with the necessity of either splitting the Westbrook-Marve-Jones combination on the left side to give some veteran support on each wing or of sending out an entire near-right flank, keeping the left side strong.

Alex could line up a right side which has had experience, though not together, in Herrou, Watkins and Brooke. All three of these youngsters have played in games at the Flats, and they should work into a smooth-functioning unit after a little practice together.

SPECULATION.

All of which would give the Jackets a first-string forward wall, which would have had some previous experience. The balance would be strongly in favor of the left side, but would tend to equalize the players on the right wing became more accustomed to working side by side.

This line, using Jones, Marve, Westbrook, Rusk, Brooke, Watkins and Herrou, leave Bill Fischer, who is responsible for the building of the line, with but one reserve who has seen service—Hudson Edwards, a guard.

Tech's schedule is all, except for weekly combat with outstanding teams, each of which can be counted on to have at least a fair line and a fair backfield, and most of which will send out better-than-average squads in each department, will hardly guarantee a full season for even a majority of this "veteran" line.

Reserve strength is seemingly lacking at the Flats, and this deficiency, unless remedied, will probably prove to be the undoing of the Engineers.

Some material is coming up from the Grey Devil and freshman ranks which, under the tutelage of Fischer, should crash through in time to save the Jackets. Fischer is an expert at his job, and this problem, an awing one now, may possibly vanish under his magic touch as the season progresses.

New and untried sophomores will bear the burden of carrying on when the regular ends are forced from the field. Harris, Williams, Mery and Vireck are the ex-rats who will form the reserve flank strength. Morrison and Brumby, of last year's scrub squad, will also return and should be valuable.

SAM FINCHER CANDIDATE.
Sam Fincher, Bill's young brother, will be a prominent candidate for a tackle berth. Little, Millians, Holt and Sloan, of last season's reserves, and Warner, Ezell, McKinney and Williams, of the frosh, will also be out for places as tackles up from Swartz, a young giant from the mountains of Pennsylvania, was counted on to fill a berth last year, but dropped out of school, becoming ineligible under conference rulings. He is in summer school now and expects to return.

Hull To Undergo Operation Here

Clyde Hull, the Texas water-wright who has made something of a name for himself here by his two close bouts with Ted Goodrich, is to undergo a major operation on his knee some time today. The knee was hurt six months ago, during a sparring session in a gym. Hull slipped backward with a jerk which pulled the knee and loosened a cartilage. He has been forced to wear a rubber bandage on the knee since that time, but it has given him plenty of trouble and has slowed him considerably. It is expected that within three weeks after the operation the knee will be healed, and a return go-between the Texas and his Atlanta opponent will again be matched.

Tech Plans To Start Football Games at 4:30, Finish Under Electric Lights

It is, after all, a modification of night football—twilight football, you might say—that L. W. (Chip) Robert, Georgia Tech trustee, and W. A. Alexander have agreed upon for this fall.

Their plans provide for the lighting of Grant field by the very latest system known to outdoor illumination experts and starting early football games at 4:30 p. m. As darkness falls along about the fourth quarter, the lights will be turned on and the game finished about 6:30 o'clock.

This, Mr. Robert says, would introduce football by electric lights to Atlantans without too deeply wounding sensitive sports writers, who, to date, have been the only ones objecting.

The late starting time for early games would give ample opportunity to test the feasibility of the scheme both from a playing viewpoint and from the popular standpoint.

It would avoid starting games in the blistering heat of 2:30 o'clock in early October without violently upsetting traditional routine.

WHAT CHIP SAYS.

Let Chip Robert talk about it: "The idea of night football for early games" will be inaugurated gradually, according to our present plans. The late starting hour—4:30 o'clock—will make it possible to avoid the extreme heat in the east stands and it will enable more people to work in stores and offices to attend. Merchants might even consider closing their stores early so that employees might attend games.

"Furthermore, the late starting time would enable Tech alumni and friends in nearby towns to do a half day's work Saturday and still have plenty of time to motor here for the game.

"By starting games at 4:30 o'clock, Atlanta people would not have their evening's social program interfered with; they would be enabled to watch a game in comfort; and, best of all, they would have plenty of time to finish their week-end business before game time.

"I can speak from experience that this feature would be highly desirable. On the day of a football game my office is completely upset from 10 a. m. on. I feel that the same condition exists in other offices.

"The transition from daylight to artificial light would be made without a jar. The game would be started in full daylight after the sun and the temperature had started to sink. Then, as it grows dark, half the lights could be turned on, and finally the full power. In that way people would have a chance to wave at each other and see the bands parade and the cheer leaders dance—which seems to be the main objection to playing football after supper."

SIX STEEL TOWERS.

In discussing the proposed lighting system, Mr. Robert says that he has estimates on the erection of six steel towers each 90 feet high and carrying a battery of eight powerful lights. Each of these lights "covers" the whole field and all 48 lamps will make a soft illumination completely covering the field and the atmosphere for a height beyond which no punted football can fly.

"The cost is not exorbitant," Mr. Robert said. "You may be sure that we would not plunge into any fool-hardy stunt without having thoroughly investigated it.

"You may be sure that Grant field will be better illuminated than any football field in America. Atlanta deserves just that. And the idea will be popular. Of that I am sure.

"I would not be surprised if the plan of starting games late and finishing under the lights proved so desirable that ALL Tech's football games will be played on that basis.

"And I believe eventually it will lead to playing all early football games here after supper as soon as people see that the game is just as exciting and just as colorful at night."

NO OBJECTIONS SEEN.

Mr. Robert said that none of Tech's opponents had been consulted about playing on a lighted field, but that he felt sure that when the matter was presented to them fully they would gladly consent.

"They know we would not engage in any farcical stunt in connection with an important football game," Mr. Robert added.

This, then, is the proposed arrangement whereby football games may be started at Grant field in daylight and finished after dusk. The idea should be easier to grasp than the heretofore transfer of the kick-off to 8:30 p. m. Certainly it is worth trying.

RAIN? EASY.

"What would you do if it rained?" I asked Mr. Robert. "If that probability appeared," he replied, "we would simply move up the starting time of the game to the old-fashioned 2:30 p. m. We would take no chances."

So there's the works. The matter, Mr. Robert promised, would be determined finally before Friday. And he appeared certain it would go through as planned.

Couldn't Beat Cops But Won This One

Indianapolis, Ind., August 21.—(P)—Chuck Wiggins, veteran Indianapolis heavyweight, couldn't whip the local police force, but last night he fished enough gloved hands at Al Friedman, Boston boxer, to gain a newspapermen's decision. Wiggins, who fought half a dozen or more policemen Sunday night, before being jailed on charges of operating a vehicle while intoxicated had his case continued in court long enough to go through with his scheduled bout with Friedman.

HELEN REACHES QUARTER-FINAL IN EASY STYLE

"Poker Face" Breezes Through Field in De- fense of U. S. Title.

By Ted Vosburgh.
Forest Hills, N. Y., August 21.—(AP)—America's first four ranking stars and the three best players of the English Wightman cup team advanced to the quarter-finals of the national women's tennis championship today, accompanied by an 18-year-old schoolgirl from the middle west.

In the most surprising match of a busy day on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Mary Greif, of Kansas City, upset Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., by the decisive score of 6-3, 6-2, to gain a place among the eight survivors of an original field of 64.

EARNED VICTORY.

Hammering away at 16-year-old Sarah's only weakness, her deep backhand, the sinewy young middle western star fully earned her victory by brilliant all-around play, although the Brookline youngster who had her day of glory when she stopped the English veteran, Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barrow, in the second round, seemed suffering from a severe case of "nerves."

Out on the stadium's center courts before a gallery of more than 3,000, Helen Jacobs, the country's second ranking star, encountered stiff opposition at the hands of Mrs. B. C. Covell, of the English contingent, before she finally won by scores of 10-8, 6-2. Betty Nuthall, the British ace, pounded out a victory over Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, national champion of 25 years ago, 7-5, 6-1, and Helen Wills took just 24 minutes to out-class Alice Francis, of Orange, N. J., in two love sets.

HELEN UNBEATABLE.

Queen Helen now has disposed of three opponents. Wielding her magic racket with merciless power, the post-faced champion of the world has piled up 36 games while losing a solitary one.

Another familiar figure to reach the quarter-final round was Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven times winner of this championship. Pitted against Virginia Hileary, of Philadelphia, the veteran Norse woman's still powerful forehand brushed aside her young opponent, 6-0, 7-5.

In three of the four Anglo-American battles the British were successful, Mrs. Covell being the only loser in addition to Miss Nuthall. Mrs. Phoebe Watson scored for England over Anna McCune-Harper, of Los Angeles, 11-6, 6-4, and Peggy Saunders Mitchell outlasted "Midge" Gladman, of Santa Monica, Cal., 4-6, 6-0, 6-1.

TODAY'S MATCHES.

Edith Cross, of San Francisco, came through easily against Mrs. Lillian Scherman Hester, of Glenview, N. Y., 6-2, 6-2. The United States still has its first four ranking players—Miss Wills, Miss Jacobs, Miss Cross and Mrs. Mallory—to depend upon.

Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal., vs. Mary Greif, Kansas City.

Edith Cross, San Francisco, vs. Mrs. Phoebe Watson, England.

Molla Mallory, New York, vs. Betty Nuthall, England.

Helen Wills, Berkeley, Cal., vs. Peggy Mitchell, England.

Mrs. Molla Mallory, Springfield, and Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, defeated Mrs. Henry Guild, Boston, and Miss Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., 7-5, 4-6, 6-4, in the doubles.

Elberfeld Girls To Swim Here

Kid Elberfeld's five girls have been ruled eligible to participate in the annual outdoor swimming championship of the Southeastern Association at present, and he was known to the swimming world as a coach. Dorothy and Ruth would be here for the best girls' basketball teams that have been seen here. They played the Rosebloom team here last winter. Dorothy and Ruth are diving specialists and have won many trophies. Dorothy and Edith are long-distance swimmers and won many events in the middle western states two years ago.

Kid Elberfeld stated Wednesday night that the girls are in Chattanooga at present, and he was certain Dorothy and Ruth would be here for the A. A. U. championship next week, but that he had not heard from the other three within the past few days. A message was received from George Griffin, of Chattanooga, a member of the Southern Association swimming committee, stating that the girls are eligible and they are expected to compete here in the two-day event.

The girls were ruled ineligible some time ago by the union because they had participated in a basketball game against professionals, but after an investigation they were reinstated.

Plans for the swimming meet are rapidly nearing completion with Al Doonan, Bernard Neal and Steve Hartney in charge. Two days will be devoted to the program and practically all of the junior events will be held on Friday, which has been designated as "junior day."

Thirty-two events have been listed on the program, with 10 for boys and girls under 12 years of age. Two of the events will be for boys and girls under nine years of age.

Tris Flashes Comeback in International

Years after most of them have quit Tris Speaker, once the greatest center fielder in baseball, is playing daily and is making a big success of it. The Grey Eagle, who is 41, is near the .370 mark in batting for the Newark club, which he manages.

NAP'S NEPHEW ENTERS SCHOOL

Malcolm Rucker Reports to Kid Elberfeld for Diamond Instruction.

Malcolm Rucker, of Alpharetta, Ga., a nephew of the famous south-paw, Nap Rucker, a former major league baseball pitcher, and George Anderson, another son of Frank Anderson, director of athletics at Oglethorpe university, enrolled Wednesday afternoon at Spiller field in the Elberfeld-Walton baseball school.

Rucker, like his uncle, is a south-paw, and one of the most promising young lefthanders in the bunch according to Elberfeld, and Anderson, like his father and two brothers, is a second baseman. Marion Anderson is playing second base for Carrollton in the Georgia-Alabama league and Alf Anderson is keying for the Inman Park Cardinals, sandlot champions of Georgia. Frank Anderson was a star lefthander during his prime.

Another of the promising youngsters added to the roster was "Slim" Griffith, sent down from Tate, Ga., by Colonel Sam Tate. "Slim," a tall right-hander, had plenty of speed but no control nor any change of pace when he enlisted, but as the class progressed, he improved. After a few instructions he went to the mound and not a ball was knocked out of the infield during his stay on the mound and every batter had to hit one before retiring to the bench.

There was no game Wednesday afternoon, and every player was given a lengthy session at the bat, hitting three balls before another took his turn.

Stribling-Wine Bout Held Up

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 21.—(P)—The right-round bout between W. L. (Young) Stribling and Frankie Wine, of Montana, scheduled for tomorrow night, was postponed today when doctors said neither boy was in condition to fight. Date for the bout here will be announced later. Stribling had his eye damaged in a fight this week in Kansas City and Wine had a painful boil which doctors lanced yesterday.

'Spoke's' Silenced Bat Roars Again at Newark

Speaker Hitting Ball at .370 Clip As Playing Manager of New Jersey Team.

Newark, N. J., August 21.—(AP)—That big black bat of Tris Speaker's which American league pitchers silenced last year is flashing a comeback in the international league this summer.

Playing right field for Newark, Tris has been hitting around .370, an average attained under the handicap of injuries and the heavy side duties of a playing manager.

By Jay Vessels.

Newark, N. J., August 21.—(AP)—That big black bat of Tris Speaker's which American league pitchers silenced last year is flashing a comeback in the international league this summer.

When American league hurling last year held Tris to a batting mark of .267, the lowest in 20 years as a big leaguer, things looked dark for the Grey Eagle. The outlook for the great old player was not helped any when Philadelphia released him unconditionally. But Tris was not without a baseball connection very long. Newark signed him as manager at a reported salary of $25,000.

Tris started out as a regular, but injuries sent him back to the bench, and he was out of the game for six weeks. He finally got back into fair playing shape for a man who admits 41 years and began slugging the ball at a lively clip.

In 120 times at bat in 43 games Tris made 44 hits and scored 34 runs for a rating of .367.

Speaker, although slowed up by age and leg injuries, has been playing a presentable game all right. Those great Speaker style catches that had Cleveland fans worshipping his Tris aren't forthcoming any more. Yet there aren't many fly chasers in the international that rate ahead of the old American league star in a defensive way, or an offensive way either for that matter.

The Grey Eagle, knowing baseball and baseball players as he does, still is confident of his ability to give Newark a winning club. He is pounding ahead the best he can with the outfit he has this year with hopes of swinging new material for a general reorganization next spring.

BISONS FIGHT TO HOLD LEAD AND WIN, 5 TO 4

Georgians Meet First De- feat of Season; Kuns- berg Star of Game.

By Ralph McGill.
Washington, August 21.—Inman Park's Cardinals came to the end of the trail here this afternoon, losing to the Buffalo Bisons, 5 to 4.

They lost but they went down with the flag flying. A tremendous home run by "Mo" Kunsberg, the tall, shuffling pitcher of the Cardinals, came in the sixth with two on to put the team back in the game. They filled the bases in the ninth and knocked out the Bison pitcher. But the Bison relief pitcher stopped them, striking out Hoyt Lyle and keeping back the needed run.

HEART-BREAKING GAME.

It was a heart-breaking game for the Cardinals. They could hardly believe that they were on the losing end of the score. It was a new experience for them as the game which eliminated them from the eastern finals was their first loss of the year.

And so the Cardinals, Georgia's sandlot champions, are on the way home, leaving the Bisons and Maine Maniacs to fight it out for the eastern title tomorrow.

Leads in the Cardinal defense lost the game. The Buffalo team scored its big total in the fifth. Three runs were scored to give them a lead of 5 to 1. "Whistle" Roberts, the scrapping little catcher, let a third strike get away from him in the fifth. That put Chaimack, the Bison second baseman, on base. Kunsberg struck out the next batter but Smith singled. Kunsberg lost control momentarily and walked to start the inning in one fall. Shortstop Ford, swinging at a wild one, caught it for a single that brought in two more runs.

CARDS COME BACK.

Seemingly hopelessly beaten, the Cardinals came back in the sixth. Kunsberg, who pitches and walks like shuffling Phil Douglas, became the hitting hero of the series with the only home run that has been hit. Alf Anderson singled to start the inning but was forced by Lyle. Good, who had already gotten two hits, popped to first. Lyle stole second. He went to third on Scarborough's infield scratch. Scarborough promptly stole second.

Kunsberg came shuffling up to the plate. He had pitched with a slowness that was exasperating. The crowd was not very friendly to the Cardinals. The Senegambian element of it was rooting for Buffalo. Kunsberg swung from someone out of the Washington monument and the ball took flight. It sailed over the left fielder's head and rolled on and on. Lyle and Scarborough scurried home. "Mo" Kunsberg was putting out. He rounded first and snatched off his cap. He swung around second as the ball hit the stands and lit out for third. His face looked as a sprinter's as he neared the tape. Kunsberg took one look at the left fielder throwing the ball and dashed for the plate. He made it a hop ahead of the infield and the crowd swung over to the Cardinals.

SETTLING DOWN.

He settled down to pitching, did "Mo" Kunsberg, and the Bisons got but one more base hit off him. Berger was going along well for the Bisons but the Cardinals kept pecking away. They had wasted chances in the early part of the game. Bill Good tripled in the second inning but tried to score on a ball hit to third and was an easy out at the plate. The Bisons had scored in the second and third while the Cardinals had got none. Tally, Yarter scoring in the third.

The score hung at 5 and 4 while the Cardinals tried desperately to break through. Tris Speaker played good ball. They were heavier and didn't look so much like youngsters as did the Cardinals. They were three up and down as quickly as the seventh but in the eighth, Berger, the Bison pitcher, began to weaken. He walked two men, Lyle and Scarborough waiting him out. They stayed while two went out. Kunsberg came up in the pinch again but his best effort was a fly to right.

Buffalo was all in order in the seventh, and the eighth came around.

Malloy's failure to apply for the date far enough in advance caused the commission to deny him a permit at yesterday's meeting. A proposal to require promoters to make application 20 days before dates of proposed cards was tabled until the next meet-

Two Intersectional Games Stand Out On Georgia's Schedule

Invasion By Yale To Cap Program

Bulldogs Go North To Meet N. Y. U.—North Carolina Added to Card.

Athens, Ga., August 21.—The 1929 football schedule of the University of Georgia includes two intersectional games, the Yale game in Athens on October 12 and the New York university game in New York city on November 9.

The Athletic association of the University of Georgia has always been a strong advocate of the desirability of intersectional intercollegiate competition. Ever since the fall of 1920 the name of some prominent football team has had a place on the schedule. Beginning in 1920, with Harvard, these games have become to be an annual affair. Following the Harvard game, a very thrilling and dramatic 10-7 victory for the east over the south, the Red and Black met the Dartmouth team in Atlanta.

The following year the Georgia team journeyed to Chicago to meet Coach Stagg's University of Chicago team, winner over Princeton's Big Three championship team, and perhaps the last great team Coach Stagg has had. The first Yale game followed in 1923, a connection that Georgia has been proud to keep consecutively ever since.

MORE TO COME.
The addition of New York University to the schedule assures Georgia's teams of intersectional competition for three more years, the 1929 game being the first of a three-year agreement. The place of 1930 and 1931 games has not yet been agreed upon, but it is certain that one of these two games will be played in the new university stadium in Athens.

The completion of the stadium will enable the University of Georgia to schedule such games regularly in the future. While the New York University game will attract wide attention this fall, the Yale game probably overshadow any contest the Red and Black eleven has ever entered. The coming of the Yale team to Athens for the stadium dedication will give football fans in the south an opportunity to see one of the most colorful and popular teams of the east. This trip for the Yale players marks the first departure for this team from a policy adverse to playing games at great distances from the home campus. This is considered a distinct compliment to southern football, establishing the fact that football in the south is now on a parity with that of any other section of the country.

The University of North Carolina is the one other new team on the Georgia schedule. Before the World War Georgia and North Carolina had played intermittently, and efforts to establish annual relations failed because of full and conflicting schedules. North Carolina's game should prove popular, and one that will compare favorably with such keen rivals as Florida, Tulane and Auburn. The annual games with Alabama and Georgia Tech will probably always continue to hold their present status of importance.

Gill Takes Rest.
After a year of travel Harry Gill will decide whether or not he will renew his track coaching at Illinois. He has been on the job a quarter of a century and has turned out more winning teams than any other track coach in the game.

2 Stars Enter Marathon Swim
In the marathon swims at Toronto, many great human fish are entered, but there will be two who will attract more than usual attention. One is Norman Ross, the big moose, holder of many a record and a world's championship in his amateur days and as fine a swimmer as anyone would care to see.

The other is another former amateur star, Martha Norelius, who still holds many records and who was an Olympic champion. She may do even better than Ross, on the theory that women can stand cold water better than men.

Alexander Out For Rest of Year
St. Louis, Mo., August 21.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran St. Louis Cardinal hurler, who recently broke training, was sent to his home at St. Paul, Neb., today for the remainder of the season at full pay. He was not suspended.

President Sam Brendon, in making the announcement, indicated final disposition of Alexander's case would not be made until next winter or spring.

Old Pete, as he is affectionately called by the fans, was ordered to St. Louis by Manager Bill McKechnie in New York Sunday night when Alexander again broke training after repeated warnings. McKechnie said he had decided to use stern measures as leniency had failed to give results.

Alexander, who is 42 years old, has been in major league baseball 18 years and is the holder of many records. He recently pitched his 373rd victory, which exceeded by one the National league record established by the late Christy Mathewson.

President Hoover Watches Sandlotters Play

WORLD SERIES DATES PLANNED

Cubs and Athletics Count On Starting War October 8.

New York, August 21.—With Pittsburgh and the Giants still making gestures at the Cubs, and the Yankees valiantly declaring that they will catch the Athletics (some other season) comes the "tentative" announcement that the world series will open in Chicago October 8. The second game then will be played in the same park.

That would mean that the third, fourth and fifth games would be played in Philadelphia—October 11, 12 and 14.

It seems a bit peculiar to stretch the series an extra day by starting it in the west and giving Philadelphia Saturday and also Sunday, which is of no use in a city where Sunday ball is not permitted. If it rained on Saturday, there would be two off days.

SUITS CONNIE.
Still, this arrangement probably would suit Connie Mack for several reasons.

But the idea of no Sunday game isn't going to suit the fans, especially in Chicago. There are a lot of rabid rooters who can't get away on week days.

NOTHING OFFICIAL.
There is as yet nothing official and it may be that some other arrangement will be made. In fact, several clubs still retain faint hopes of being instrumental in making other arrangements.

There is some conversation now of a New York series between the Giants and the Yankees. This would be as bitterly fought as a world's series. It seems too bad they can't make it a three-cornered affair and let Brooklyn in. That would produce a situation in Greater New York resembling the late World War.

Engel Deplores Lack Of Good Rookie Crop

Washington Scout—"Almost a President"—Says This Is Baseball's Leanest Year.

By Ralph McGill,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

Washington, August 21.—Joe Engel, winsome, lively and debonair as of yore, arrived in the capital city today and the world seemed brighter immediately. It is a habit Joe has. When the good folk arise to find the sun shining a little brighter than usual they all say, "Well, Joe Engel must be in town."

It was Joe Engel who was almost president of the Cracker baseball club. It was the biggest disappointment of his life when the sale fell through. Joe has, locked in his safe, more than a hundred wires.

All of them from wise-cracking friends who have been the butt of Joe Engel's jests in the past. It was these telegrams which supplied Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the Washington comedians, with the material for their little skit entitled "Almost a President."

Joe is back at his old job of scouting and arrived in Washington today from the International League. "I just sat around and talked about hunting," he said. "There doesn't seem to be many ball players this year. The Southern league has fewer than it has ever had."

SCOUTS MOANING.
"It used to be possible to go in there and land a couple of real ball players every year. The scouts are all moaning about the Southern and the Texas leagues. The crops of players in those leagues are very small."

Since he left Atlanta Engel has traveled to the coast, looking in at the Arizona State league, the Texas Western, and all the small leagues en route.

And Joe was a little pessimistic. "I don't believe baseball is on the increase," he said. "This junior baseball thing may help out in the future. It seems, though, that this is baseball's leanest year so far as young players are concerned. Last year was a good one in the Southern league but this year they just didn't produce."

It is Joe Engel's idea that the veteran pitchers will be given a new lease on life next season by the new ruling which permits discoloring of the ball and a freeze of resin in both leagues.

BENEFITS HURLERS.
The new rule should be especially beneficial to pitchers like Climax Blethen, of the Crackers. He is not ready to shuffle off to the home for the infirm but he is not exactly in his teens.

Climax Blethen will go up next year and find no new physical conditions to deal with so far as the ball is concerned. He will have a discolored ball with all the dangerous slow removal. It will improve his pitching chances considerably.

No matter where Joe's conversation may stray it invariably returns to the Atlanta sale that sailed away. Joe confessed that he had about given up any idea of buying the Chattanooga club. "I did look it over," he said, "and I think Chattanooga is a good baseball town but negotiations there have dropped off. I'd rather have Atlanta than any other minor league club I know. I was certainly disappointed when it failed."

ARCHIE DOING WELL.
Joe brought back word that Maurice Archdeacon was doing a pretty fair job of outfielding with the Toronto Leafs. Archdeacon was never satisfied at Atlanta. He was writing letters to Toronto asking them to buy him all the while he was a Cracker. They didn't answer the letters until Joe Rabbit was hurt and they needed a man.

"I am glad to learn that Doc Silva is going along all right for Atlanta," he said. "I'll never forget seeing him run a foot race against Charlie Padlock one day out in California. Padlock was at his best then and Silva was in a baseball uniform. Padlock beat him by just a whisker. Silva was one of the fastest men the game ever had and still has plenty of speed left."

Engel will go on the road again soon. His life is one of unfettered freedom. The kind that brings that far-away look to the eyes of married men and goes. Joe Engel comes and goes. He knows him on the coast and in Canada. He has more friends than any other man in baseball. He knows all the spots where entertainment may be had. When life bores he goes where he had to be. When you see a man pause in his work and look out the window with a far-away look in his eyes and entranced look on his face he is, the odds are, thinking about Joe Engel.

Coach Works Hard.
Joe Nork, University of Illinois athlete, has been named coach of freshman football, freshman basketball, intramural director and instructor in physical education at St. John's college.

Long Road Trip.
One of the longest football trips of the 1929 season will be North Carolina State's visit to Lansing to play Michigan State.

SOUTHERN FILLY WINS CRUSADERS

Easter Stockings Sets Record in Taking Rich Hawthorne Race.

Chicago, August 21.—(AP)—Another great filly from south of the Mason and Dixon line, Easter Stockings, again showed up the stronger sex in winning the $10,000 Crusaders special stake at Hawthorne today, defeating the victory of Rose of Sharon.

In the Chicago test stakes, which was run yesterday, Easter Stockings, the three-year-old champion of her sex in 1928, sporting the colors of the Audley farms stable of Barryville, Va., captured the race in the most brilliant finish seen in a stake race this season. She defeated Buddy Bauer, five-year-old son of North Star III, carrying the silks of Edward R. Bradley, by a nose, with Display, Walter J. Edmonson's crack distance runner, finishing in third place, a head back of Buddy Bauer.

The turn back this year's field of handicap stars, Easter Stockings established a new track record for the mile and an eighth, running the distance in 1:50 1/5. This knocked two-fifths of a second off the old record made by Flat Iron, Stuyvesant Peabody's one-time great racer.

The race was worth $10,000, of which $7,100 went to the winner. Easter Stockings was third choice in the betting and paid $13.04 to $2 mutuels to win. Her place price was $5.68 and $3.28 to show. The place price on Buddy Bauer was $4.38 with $2.22 to show. Display paid $3.18 to show.

Harry Schutte, an apprentice jockey, had the mount on Easter Stockings and rode a brilliant race. He kept her under stout restraint, running in second and third place until they straightened out for the dash to the wire.

My Dandy, the crack sprinter, which matched his speed with the distance stars, had all the early speed with Buddy Bauer offering the challenge. They raced in this order until the horses turned into the stretch. Meantime, Display, straggling back in last place, began to pick up speed with every jump.

Entering the stretch My Dandy was still in front, but an eighth out from the finish he began to show signs of blowing up and Buddy Bauer moved into the lead, closely pursued by Easter Stockings.

Easter Stockings began to make her race after entering the stretch and coming with great strides on the outside, under the hustling ride of the younger, Schutte, just managed to get up to win, in the final jump to the wire.

59 Women In Long Swim
Toronto, Ont., August 21.—(AP)—Fifty-nine women swimmers have entered the Wrigley 10-mile swim for women to be staged in Lake Ontario next Friday. A purse of $15,000 will be split among the first five to finish, $10,000 to the winner; $3,000 for second place; $1,000 for third; $600 for fourth, and $400 for fifth.

The swim is conditional on the temperature of the water being 55 degrees or more.

Among the favorites are three girls from the United States—Martha Norelius, Ethel Hertle, last year's winner; and Olive Satterdam, of Seattle, Wash., who was runner-up to Miss Hertle.

The race will precede by five days the 15-mile Wrigley open marathon for men and women to be held in Lake Ontario August 28.

Schmeling Plans Brief Vacation
New York, August 21.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, German heavyweight whose license has been revoked by the New York state athletic commission for his refusal to meet Phil Scott under the promotion of Humbert Fugazy, has arrived in New York after an exhibition tour extending to the Pacific coast, and will sail Saturday for Germany. He plans to return to the United States after a brief vacation.

Schmeling said he would fight Scott for Fugazy only if permitted to sign a new contract in the place of the one the promoter now holds with the signature of Arthur Bulow, the manager disclaimed by Schmeling but recognized by the boxing commission.

Too Much Science In Golf—Hagen

Americans, With Extensive Employment of Alibi and Greed To Win, Fail to Enjoy Game.

By Walter Hagen.
British Open Golf Champion.
(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)
New York, August 21.—"Our forefathers enjoyed the game a great deal more than we do," remarked a golf enthusiast to me. And he went on to explain:

"You see, science has ruined the game for us in recent years. Science is a nuisance. There was a time when life was worth living, but not today if one plays golf. Because golf now does not take in the actual playing of the game as much as it does the hours of alibi and aftermath."

"The old boys who lived and golfed in Scotland played the game in silence and then went home and forgot it. They must have enjoyed their favorite pastime as it should be enjoyed. There are many old books on golf, but nothing compared with what the present generation is going to hand down to posterity."

"If there was any deep mystery connected with golf a hundred years ago our forefathers kept it to themselves; we find no writings on the subject of psychology or theory, and there were few books dealing with the art of shot-making and advice on what to do and what not to do."

"The game was played for pleasure, and the old Scotch players refused to make work out of it, although golf has always been taken more or less seriously in Scotland. It has been something akin to a religion. It is their life."

TECHNICAL TERMS.
"Today we hear of such things as good timing, bad rhythm, intentional slices and hooks, back spin, playing from the side out, long discussions about the follow through, and admonitions to keep the eye on the ball and the head down. If we fail to keep up with this sort of golf ourselves, our friends take it upon themselves to furnish free advice—sometimes at the most inopportune moments. One must constantly be reminded of his faults, whether he is pleased to hear about them or not."

It is remarkable how my friend hit the nail on the head. Golf is no longer a pleasure for a great many enthusiasts who feel duty bound to live up to a handicap, and who are miserable when they score a couple of shots more than they should."

We Americans are responsible for most of this unrest and dissatisfaction. The American mind works a little differently from the English or Scotch mind in regard to sport."

SQUEEZE IT ALL.
Over here we go in for golf for all it is worth, and making a success of the game means winning trophies at tournament play. The American rushes to his business. When he is on the links he must either be playing for a large stake or he must be engaged in a tournament for a weekly handicap.

I have visited the British Isles several times and I have had a chance to observe the English and the Scotch golfers close up. Before I went abroad I had a very good idea what was what in Great Britain through the many Scotch and English players who came to the United States and from whom I learned the game.

The foreign players are not inclined to give as deep study to the game as we Americans do. When a foreigner goes out for an afternoon's golf he makes the most of it. He is never in a hurry, and when he finishes he is satisfied to let his clubs rest. The alibi—used in the slang sense—only too often found its way into English and Scotch golf, and the great majority disdain to use it even now.

The Englishman is a serious golfer in a way, but not what we would term a golf nut or a bug, terms applied to most Americans. The American worries about this and that, and he must get in his practice before rounds. It is unlawful to see an Englishman practice as we do over here. The sight of an Englishman or a Scotchman going out with his little bag of balls for an hour's practice is almost unheard of. He does not take as many lessons, and an indoor golf school is seldom seen.

However, golfers are being developed in the United States at a faster rate, and our golf is becoming more of a stable article than the golf brought over originally from the other side. Science has helped to make us better players, even if it has given us fits of hysteria and unrest. The American loves to get quick results in business or sport, and this is one reason, the principal reason, why we are going far ahead of Johnny Ball in a game borrowed from him.

Golfers today may not take the game as leisurely as the Scotch did a century ago, but they are making quicker progress and are working along more scientific principles. Science may drive a lot of us to the mad house, but it is making better players.
